AIR RACERS HOP ACROSS U. S.

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 29.—(AP.)—Living up to their advance predictions of record-breaking speeds, four pilots rocketed eastward toward Cleveland today at 250 miles an hour and upwards in the transcontinental air race from Los Angeles.

Unofficial figures showed that Col. Roscoe Turner, of Hollywood, was setting the pace with an average of about 275 miles per hour up to his first refueling point, Colorado Springs, Col.

James Haizlip, of St. Louis, ripped off an average of approximately 256 miles per hour in reaching Goodland, Kan., while Lee Gehlbach, Detroit, and Jimmie Wedell, New Orleans, were racing along at about 250 miles an hour.

UNITED AIRPORT, BURBANK, Cal., Aug. 29.—(INS.)—After a dramatic three-hour fight with death high in the air over the mountains of Eastern California, Claire Vance, of Oakland, returned to the airport early today, reducing the number of participants to four in the coast-to-coast speed flight.

The motor was spitting fire not more than two inches from the leaking gasoline and Vance's clothes were drenched when he landed. He said:

Hope Dim for Safety Of Atlantic Fliers

ROBERTSON PLEADS FOR SPENDING HERE

Conditions Ripe for Revival, Parley Informed

With a stabilized condition of the nation's financial affairs, now is the time for the country's industries to modernize, rehabilitate and prepare for expansion, A. W. Robertson, chairman of President Hoover's committee on rehabilitation, told a group of manufacturers' representatives at a conference today, first of a series intended to bring back prosperity.

Robertson told the group:

URGES SPENDING

E. T. Weir, chairman of the National Steel Corporation, declared his company gave out $300,000 in contracts during the past week, and promised there would be more.

Joseph N. Dilworth told of details of an organization, members of which will call on business executives and seek their cooperation. Bankers, public utilities officials, manufacturers and the heads of wholesale houses with local offices here attended the meeting held in the Chamber of Commerce.

Robertson urged those concern whose finances are still strong enough to withstand it to spend money for plant improvement—modernization and improvement—and those whose credit is still good to borrow money for the same purpose.

Primarily, the Hoover rehabilitation program concerns the manufacturers whose finances are in such shape that they need no outside assistance, but for the concerns torn by depression there is an increased amount of commercial credit as well as $5,000,000,000 available through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

NOTES IMPROVEMENT

Robertson said:

"Financial and credit affairs are clearly and positively better. In fact, it might well be said that whatever weaknesses there were in the financial situation have been corrected or are in the process of being cured?

"Reserves in the Federal Reserve banks, beyond what they are required by law to main-

MISS EMMA LINTZ . . . . SHE HAS REFUSED MANY SUITORS

Heiress Friend of Krenn, Who Gave Up Fortune

'Ideal Man' Hunter, McCormick Aide Are Companions

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—(INS.)—While Edwin Krenn lay ill in his Drake Hotel suite today, Miss Emma Lintz, prominent Chicago heiress, told of her friendship with the young Swiss architect who renounced more than $6,000,000 of the fortune of the late Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick.

Daughter of the late Anton Lintz, wealthy real estate operator, the young heiress, who also maintains a suite at the Drake, became famous four years ago when she searched throughout America and Europe for an "ideal man." Speaking of her acquaintanceship with Krenn, the friend and counsellor of Mrs. McCormick, the heiress said:

"Of course, we are good friends. We have been guests at the same hotel for some time. We occasionally lunched together, or took tea on the terrace."

REJECTED MANY

Miss Lintz, who rejected thousands of suitors because they appeared to be more interested in her wealth than her personality, said she will soon leave for Los Angeles, going abroad from there.

Krenn was ordered to rest by his physician immediately after returning from a Sunday drive in the country. He was suffering from extreme nervousness, it was said. Encountered by a newspaperman as he returned to the hotel, the architect refused to discuss the agreement under which he surrendered his five-twelfths portion of the McCormick estate in return for a lifetime annuity of $24,000.

ESTATE $15,000,000

The estate, at one time reputedly worth $40,000,000, if liquidated on the present market would realize at least $15,000,000, it was learned from a source close to the Rockefeller family.

Thus Krenn relinquished approximately $6,250,000 when he signed away his five-twelfths bequest for a guaranteed income of $2,000 a month.

ARMSTRONG ACCOUNTS SCANNED

Auditor Before Jury After Study of Bank Deposits

The grand jury this afternoon heard as a witness an auditor who had just examined the personal bank accounts of the late Joseph G. Armstrong, for 25 years one of Allegheny County's most powerful political leaders.

M. C. Conick, the witness, scanned the late County Commissioners' accounts after they had been turned over by a representative of the Union Trust Company.

Walters was followed by Maj. C. B. Shaffer and P. L. Griffith, of the Koppers Products Company. They were questioned by First Assistant District Attorney George F. P. Langfitt.

The grand jury was expected to make further inquiry in several directions—notably Watson Bowser's $200,000 hauling job at the county airport, printing contracts, the alleged diversion of 53,000 gallons of gasoline paid for by the county but used by private individuals, and the wholesale purchase of tax receipts by politicians in the Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth and Twelfth wards.

'MA' FERGUSON LOSES LEAD

DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 29.—(INS.)—Gov. Ross Sterling, seeking the Democratic nomination for a second term, held a lead of 3,007 votes over former Gov. Miriam Ferguson in the Democratis run-off primary today. Earlier reports showed Mrs. Ferguson ahead by a thin margin.

Returns to the Texas Election Bureau from 251 out of 254 counties, including 158 complete, gave Sterling a total of 464,451 votes and Mrs. Ferguson 461,444.

The wife of a former governor, Mrs. Ferguson was herself the state's chief executive. Six years ago the electorate defeated her attempt to gain a second term and two years ago she was again beaten, only to come back strong in the present contest.

Roosevelt Widens Lead In Hearst Papers' Poll

By COLE E. MORGAN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—(Universal)—On the face of returns as tabulated to date in the nationwide presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in cooperation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States, Gov. Roosevelt has a potential safe electoral vote of 322 to his credit, outside of the doubtful zone.

On the same basis of calculation, President Hoover has 32.

The doubtful zone, embracing those states where the leading candidate shows less than 60 per cent of the vote tabulated, represents the remaining 167 of the country's 531 electoral votes.

A week ago, Gov. Roosevelt's potential vote, calulated in like manner, was 302. He thus strengthened his position 30 votes or 10 per cent with the addition of 41,000 poll ballots.

This was brought about by the swing of New York state early in the week above the 60 per cent mark on a heavy Roosevelt vote from New York city, which more than offset the Hoover vote of the

NOW WHAT—MR. STIMSON?

IMBECILITY is a harsh characterization of the foreign policy of a great nation, and yet the Hoover-Stimson interpretation of the Kellogg pact and their contention that it is our duty to take sides in every quarrel between nations, amount to just that.

President Hoover speaks of "the inspired outlawry of war,"—not so very inspiring, we must say, if it means that the United States is duty bound, as Secretary Stimson maintains, to inquire into every warlike controversy that breaks out in any quarter of the world and to mobilize the cosignatories of the pact against any nation which it decides,—at long range and with meager information—is the aggressor.

It was hardly a fortnight ago that Secretary of State Stimson revealed this view of the Kellogg pact, saying that this country would NEVER recognize any treaty or agreement brought about contrary to its obligations.

We have not had to wait long for an indication of just how little acceptance the Stimson theory is destined to receive. From Tokio comes the announcement that Japan will proceed immediately to recognize the new state erected by her armed forces in Manchuria, in defiance of Secretary of State Stimson's declaration of policy and the provisions of the Kellogg pact.

THE JAPANESE foreign minister, in addressing the Diet, declared that experience has taught that the only way to deal with China is by force, a policy which his country has determined upon.

"It is admitted," said he, "by those conversant with conditions in China that no remedy can be effected by having recourse either to the covenant of the League of Nations or to any other organ of what may be termed machinery of peace."

At the Institute of Politics in Williamstown this week Foster Dulles, author of "America in the Pacific," seriously questioned the Stimson policy of not recognizing the results of Japanese aggression. He declared something must be done to prevent a further drifting of the two nations into a conflict.

And, Huntington Wilson, former chief of Eastern affairs of the State Department, in an address on the same day, directed a warning against Secretary Stimson's policy as tending to make the United States appear as the "Quixotic Guardian" of Chinese integrity and the "CHIEF CRITIC AND HECKLER OF JAPAN."

OF COURSE, no sensible American wishes his country to be a heckler of any nation, but if President Hoover and Secretary Stimson cannot abandon so ill-starred a role, cannot they be made to realize that it involves grave danger to the peace and security of the United States?

If they MUST pursue a "diplomacy," which is RASH and DOGMATIC, cannot they see the importance of protecting the country from the inevitable irritation and resentation of sensitive power, which finds itself singled out for our admonition and rebuke?

It is the hope of every good American that imbecility of the Stimsonian type will not forever—nor for long—direct the conduct of our foreign relations.

The United States hopes and pines for a self-contained and rational foreign policy built upon the mutual respect of nations and the non-interference by each in the concerns of others.

BUT, AS LONG as our relations with foreign powers are in the keeping and under the direction of President Hoover and Secretary Stimson, it is DOUBLY, TREBLY, ALL-IMPORTANT, that our national defenses should be maintained upon a scale of amplitude and a plane of efficiency that will assure the safety of our country.

MORATORIUM EXTENSION INVOLVED

America's Help Sought In Plan to Return To Gold Standard

By WILLIAM HILLMAN
Universal Service.

LONDON, Aug. 29.—Europe's war debts to the United States, which are to be reconsidered at the pending world economic conference, are being discussed in the United States by Montagu Norman, president of the Bank of England.

This, according to published and private opinion today, is the purpose of Norman's mystery-cloaked journey to America under the assumed name of "Prof. Clarence Skinner." Official circles remained silent as to Norman.

WAR DEBT QUESTION

The Sunday Chronicle and Sunday Referee state that Norman is discussing stabilization of the pound sterling. The president of the Bank of England favors Britain's return to the gold standard. Such a return, according to the British view, is possible only if:

1—There is a general rise in international prices of raw materials.

2—The war debts question is solved, either by cancellation, the flotation of an international loan, or by some arrangement preventing a gold flow to America.

3—Some steps are taken to reduce th tariff barriers surrounding the United States.

FLORIDA BOATS FLEE STORM

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 29.—(INS.)—Storm warnings were ordered out this morning and small boats were moved up the Miami River for safety, in anticipation of the tropical disturbance sweeping toward the Florida coast from the Bahamas.

The storm, reported to be of slight intensity not approaching the power of a hurricane, is expected to strike Florida between Jupiter and Key West some time today.

A 20-mile-an-hour wind was blowing here early this morning. Airplane lines maintained regular schedules despite the disturbance, the Pan-American Line passenger plane leaving for Nassau, B. I., without delay.

PINCHOT REFUSES TO RUN AGAINST DAVIS FOR SENATE

DUTY TO STATE JOB, ASSERTS GOVERNOR

Believed Waiting for 1934 to Enter Race For U. S. Post

MILFORD, Pa., Aug. 29.—(AP.)—Gov. Gifford Pinchot today said he would not run for United States Senator in opposition to James J. Davis.

The Governor's statement, made at his Pike County home, was in answer to speculation on the part of political observers as to what he would do following his demand last week that Davis be asked to withdraw as a candidate for re-election.

'JOB AT HARRISBURG'

Pinchot said:

"I have no intention whatever of running for United States Senator against Jim Davis. I undertook to do certains things for the State of Pennsylvania and I am pledged to the people who elected me to carry out that undertaking.

"My job is at Harrisburg and that is where I shall stay."

The Governor's demand that Davis withdraw was made after the junior Pennsylvania senator had been indicted by a Federal grand jury on charges of participating in an alleged national lottery.

Recently, politicians here have talked about the possibility of Gov. Pinchot joining the cabinet of Franklin D. Roosevelt, if Roosevelt should defeat President Hoover in November. But Pinchot has refused to comment on this possibility.

WAITING FOR 1934

The Governor's announcement coincides with the general opinion around the State House in Harrisburg. Politicians there believe he is using the same strategy he adopted six years ago in opposing William S. Vare, Philadelphia, who defeated Pinchot and George Wharton Pepper, but later was rejected by the Senate.

They expect him to wait until 1934—his last year as state executive—to run for the Senate, either if Davis heeds his demand to withdraw as Republican candidate or is denied a seat.

Under this plan, Pinchot would not have to wreck his state administration in the middle of his term by turning over the reins to Lieut. Gov. E. C. Shannon, a Regular Republican.

VETS PLEDGED AID BY WATERS

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Aug. 29.—(AP.)—Word that Commander W. W. Waters, of the bonus expeditionary force, would carry on his fight to care for unemployed World War veterans was brought back by Mayor Eddie McCloskey, who conferred with Waters in New York over the week-end.

McCloskey, who came back by plane, said 14 B. E. F. camps have been set up in various sections of the country and more would be established soon.

Waters plans to attend the national American Legion convention in Portland, Ore., September 12 to reopen his battle for cash payment of the bonus, following which he will reorganize his army.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Aug. 29.—(AP.)—Commander W. W. Waters, of the B. E. F., informed Camp Sherry by telephone last night he would visit the place late this week, arriving by plane. He indorsed Capt. Hoke Smith as official commander of Camp Sherry and denied affiliation with any other organization.

The End of An Eclipse -:- By QUIN HALL

NORMAN ON WAR DEBT MISSION

of England stated A THREE-YEAR EXTENSION OF THE WAR DEBTS MORATORIUM is considered essential if immediate cancellation is not achieved.

Special interest is attached to the scheduled meeting tomorrow of Premier Herriot, of France, and Home Secretary Samuel, of Britain, in the channel islands. At the meeting, it is believed they will discuss the economic conference and the proposed new Franco-American commercial agreement.

GOLD STANDARD

The impression which British financial circles endeavor to convey is that Norman is discussing the question of Britain resuming war debts payments in connection with the general problem of currency, commodity prices, and the gold standard, all of which will be considered at the economic conference.

Declaring that deflation and the rise of gold prices is threatening to lead "TO GENERAL REPUDIATION OF DEBTS through the obvious inability to pay by debtors and by debtor countries of all kinds," Winston Churchill, former chancellor of the exchequer, urges in the Sunday Pictorial:

"The governments of the United States and Great Britain ought, through their agents—the Federal Reserve Bank and the Bank of England—to come to a definite conclusion that commodities must be revaluated up to a 1927 or 1928 level, and that thereafter sufficient currency must be available to provide a steady measure for prices."

The Sunday Chronicle states:

"The general idea (of Norman's visit) is to effect (Britain's) change over to gold in 1933 AFTER THE WAR DEBTS AND REPARATIONS QUESTIONS HAVE BEEN SETTLED and some steps taken to reduce world tariff barriers."

The Sunday Referee adds:

"Montagu Norman is seeking American help for return to the gold standard by Britain. Help is desired in the form of a general rise in the prices of raw materials so that the new value of the gold pound can be set as high as possible and in this way avoid overdepreciation of pound deposits abroad as well as overappreciation of British dollar debts.

"In this connection, Mr. Norman wishes to ascertain the intentions of the United States on the question of war debts. In Paris, it is believed Mr. Norman is negotiating on the resumption of Britain's war debts payments. The French fear for the gentleman's agreement."

GENTLEMEN'S AGREEMENT

The gentlemen's agreement, part of the Lausanne reparations settlement, was an understanding between America's debtors that a ber of bilateral settlements with settlement of war debts would not be sought by any one of them without the knowledge of the others. It provided for a settlement en bloc rather than a numthe United States.

No English public official nor any financial leader is willing to admit that Norman's secret visit to the United States under the alias of Prof. Skinner has anything to do with American campaign politics, although it is generally admitted that British opinion is uniformly favorable to Hoover and under the conviction that further moratoriums and eventual debt cancellation is assured under a continued Hoover administration, but would be extremely unlikely under Democratic government.

MacDonald Visiting King, Debts Linked

LONDON, Aug. 29.—(INS.)—Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald today entrained for Balmoral Castle, summer home of King George and Queen Mary on the River Dee in Scotland, for an audience with the King.

The Prime Minister was to report on the Ottawa conference and the Irish situation, although it was believed in well-informed circles here that the war debt subject might come up, particularly as regarding the mysterious visit to the United States of Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England.

ROOSEVELT BID FOR SMITH'S AID DROPPED

Peace Parley Evasion Widens Rift Between Former Friends

By RAYMOND I. BORST
International News Service.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 29.—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic presidential nominee, has made his last bid for the active support of his one-time bosom friend, former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, it was revealed today by Roosevelt's advisors.

Rebuffed twice by Smith within the last 48 hours in an attempt to bring about a reconciliation, Gov. Roosevelt has decided that if any more peace overtures are made during the campaign they will have to come from Smith.

Even though some Democratic leaders have expressed belief that one stump speech by Smith would be worth a million votes for the Democratic national ticket, Roosevelt will make no further efforts to heal the breach between himself and the man he characterized as the "happy warrior." So far as Gov. Roosevelt is concerned, from now on it will be "Smith's move."

The reconciliation meeting between Roosevelt and Smith was to have been staged yesterday afternoon at a reception for the Governor at the summer home of his law partner, Basil O'Connor, at West Hampton Beach, L. I., but Smith bluntly refused to attend.

Instead of attending the reception for Gov. Roosevelt, Smith left his own summer place, nearby, early in the morning and drove 90 miles up Long Island to Far Rockaway, where he spent the day with his son, Arthur. Smith returned to the vicinity of West Hampton last night after Roosevelt had started for Albany.

Gov. Roosevelt made the following comment today:

"The truth of the matter is that Mr. O'Connor called Al on the phone more than a week ago to ask him to be there. Their conversation was extremely friendly but Al actually had a prior engagement and could not attend."

Mollison got away at 10:25 a. m., eastern daylight time, announcing he would land at Prince Edward Island if bad weather made it impossible to reach Sydney.

Mollison, who motored out to Nerepis after spending the night at St. John, was compelled to wait some time before the fog lifted sufficiently to enable a take-off.

From Sydney or Prince Edward Island, Mollison will fly to Harbor Grace, awaiting good weather there before taking off across the ocean.

HITLER MEETING VON PAPEN TO AVERT STRIFE

By EDWARD L. DEUSS
International News Service.

BERLIN, Aug. 29.—An entirely new line-up in Germany with Adolf Hitler temporarily dropping his demand for supreme power, appeared as a possibility this afternoon with the revelation the Nazi leader was booked for a conference with Chancellor Franz von Papen.

News of the projected meeting between Von Papen and Hitler came as a complete surprise. The two had been believed permanently estranged by Von Papen's emphatic speech at Muenster, Westphalia, in which he charged Hitler had been false to the ideals of his National Socialist party.

HARMONY SOUGHT

The conference, it was understood, was called in a desperate eleventh-hour effort to find some basis for co-operation before Von Papen proceeds to Neudeck to ask President Von Hindenburg to dissolve the Reichstag immediately after its opening tomorrow.

Reports that the Nazis were nearing a coalition agreement with Former Chancellor Heinrich Bruening's Catholic Centrist party resulted in speculation regarding a joint ultimatum to Von Hindenburg opposing dissolution of the Reichstag and suggesting appointment of some "neutral personality" as chancellor.

The choice would be some man unidentified either with the ranks of Hitler, Von Papen, Bruening or Lieut. Gen. Kurt Von Schleicher, the strong-armed minister of defense in the Von Papen cabinet.

BATTLE PREDICTED

Meanwhile, the press predicted a stormy Reichstag session if Von Hindenburg withheld dissolution. The Nazi press continued to attack the right of Clara Zetkin, 75-year-old Communist deputy, to open the session as senior member. Hitler's paper, the Voelkischer Beobachter, branded her as a "red traitor."

As long as Hoover and Stimson are at the helm, the NATION MUST LOOK TO ITS DEFENSES AND LOOK TO THEM WELL AND PROMPTLY.

It is the misrule of the present administration which has brought the Army and Navy into their present condition of shrinkage and neglect. IT IS TIME FOR US TO CATCH UP!

TIRED OF DIRTY DISHES, TEACHER ADMITS KILLING WIFE

LAYS TRAGEDY TO WRECK OF HOME DREAM

Aimed to Slay Self, But Feared Widow Would Remarry

MARSHALL, Ill., Aug. 29.—(AP.)—A story of how H. C. Moor, 31, a Robinson (Ill.) high school teacher, allegedly slew his 32-year-old teacher-wife, Marjorie, because he had an exaggerated inferiority complex and because he was tired of "unwashed dishes," was related by county authorities today.

Moor, the officials said, confessed he shot his wife to death in their automobile on the night of August 14. He was arrested at the time, but maintained he had been slugged and his wife slain by hijackers.

WOULD TEACH IN PEN

State Attorney Victor Miller quoted Moor as saying in his confession made yesterday at the county jail:

"I want to spend the rest of my life paying my debt to society by teaching in the penitentiary.

'ONLY WAY OUT'

"We all have our dreams. My dream was advancement in my profession and a home with a devoted wife and happy children.

"But Marjorie was not a home girl. She wanted her own life apart from me. Perhaps she was a better teacher than I. I wasn't sure about that. So we gradually drifted apart. It was intolerable. For a while I thought I'd kill myself, but that would mean she would have a second husband. At least I felt she would. We had loved each other and I couldn't stand to think of her marrying again. I simply decided that the only way out was to kill her."

AIMEE SUFFERS NEW COLLAPSE

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 29.—AP.)—Illness may again cut short the comeback series of sermons of Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, evangelist.

On several previous occasions, Mrs. Hutton has collapsed as she pursued her evangelistic work. She recently took a prolonged rest in an effort to regain her health.

PASTOR PLANS TOUR WITH GIRL

LONDON, Aug. 29.—(INS.)—The Rev. Harold Francis Davidson, 60-year-old pastor recently convicted of misconduct with many young London girls, today announced he was considering touring the United States with Barbara Harris or Rose Ellis, two of the girls who testified against him.

The pastor, former rector of Stiffkey, said he wanted to make the trip to raise money for his appeal.

Ousted from the church and forbidden to use his former pulpit, Davidson yesterday preached on the lawn in front of his old church, using a phonograph to provide music.

The clergyman was convicted last month of improper conduct with several young women he met while posing as a reformer in London. When the sentence is pronounced he will appeal to the King and the Privy Council.

CHINESE ATTACK JAPS' MUKDEN STRONGHOLD

Raiders Terrorize City With Torches, Guns, Air Bombers Pursue

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Aug. 29.—(AP.)—The flames and bullets of war spread terror through this key city of Manchuria today after hundreds of Chinese raiders had sprung up in the night and dealt a swift blow at the heart of the Japanese military defense system.

Before daylight most of the many small bands of Chinese had vanished, but large concentrations of Chinese were reported only four miles away at Hun Hopu. Japanese bombers took the air with orders to "get" them.

In Mukden proper, the largest city of rich Manchuria, all was confusion after a night of panic, during which the big arsenal and Japanese air base were fired. The city's entire fire department was battling these blazes this morning.

RAIDERS ORGANIZED

The Chinese raiders obviously had a well organized plan of action, so sudden and mysterious were their attacks on strategic defense points, shortly after midnight.

Hardly had the alarm been sounded for Japanese troops and police, when fire broke out at the arsenal and air base, and the wireless station was the scene of hand to hand fighting. In one skirmish near the arsenal, a Japaneses officer and two soldiers wearing the uniform of the new state, Manchukuo, were slain.

The chatter of machine guns and the rumble of tanks soon aroused the populace. The groups of raiders, numbering several hundred each, continued sallies on the Japanese defense scheme.

The Chinese penetrated the strictly Japanese section, and even threw their strength against the south gate of the walled city. The streets seemed to swarm with fighting men and the Japanese were at a disadvantage, for their adversaries worked under cover of darkness.

CHANG ACCUSED

The Japanese declared the assault on Mukden, where they themselves entered the wedge for their own military campaign almost a year ago, was inspired by Marshal Chang Hsiao Liang.

The uprising apparently was timed to coincide with the arrival of Nobuyoshi Muto as supreme military commander of Japanese forces in this area and minister to the Manchukuo government, which Japan soon will recognize.

Gen. Muto was protected by a heavy guard today.

MOTHER KILLS 2 CHILDREN

The survivor, Louise Simmons, 10, was found on the island an hour later. She directed searchers in recovering the body of her mother and two sisters.

The girl said her mother, who sold religious literature, brought them from their home, 16 miles away, and waded out into the water with Dorothy, 8, and Marjorie, 6, in her arms. Louise said she was led along by her hand, but succeeded in breaking loose just before Mrs. Simmons and the other girls sank.

KILLING LINKED TO VOLPE CASE

Another murder was blamed on the Volpe killers today—a murder which removed a man who might have been able to identify the assassins of Johnny, Jim and Arthur Volpe, according to the homicide detectives.

In a Hill district brickyard was found the body of one George Pannell, 34, a Negro, slain with a shotgun. He had been in a nearby hat-cleaning shop on the day the Volpes were massacred in the Rome Coffee Shop at 704 Wylie avenue and detectives theorized that he may have "talked too much" since.

One suspect was arrested on the Hill and later discharged. But in Morgantown, W. Va., another suspect, arrested in a mining camp, was being held for the Pittsburgh police. He was listed as James L. Williams, 30, of Wylie avenue.

It may be hard times, but depositors in the closed Garfield and Bloomfield banks are slow to collect money due them, J. S. Garfield is paying 15 per cent in a second dividend; the Bloomfield a first of 12½ per cent.

CANNON FEARS SALOON RETURN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—(AP.)—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Church, South, said in a statement last night that "to safeguard this country from the saloon" he holds to be "an utterly impractical proposition if the liquor traffic is again legalized in the several states."

Bishop Cannon said he had been misquoted in a dispatch from New York August 26 on his arrival from Europe, which stated:

"Bishop Cannon said he would not vote in the presidential election unless President Hoover gives assurance that he will safeguard the country from the saloon.

"If I get a definite guarantee from President Hoover that he will safeguard the country from the saloon I will vote for him. If I don't get such a guarantee, my dry friends and myself will not vote for him."

On the witness stand Saturday Chaplin declared he feared his two small sons would be injured spiritually, if not physically, by motion picture work at such an early and impressionable age. He said:

"I had to begin work when I was 5 years old, but they don't have to."

Mrs. Chaplin testified she did not believe motion picture careers would harm her sons.

GIRL KIDNAPED BY FLEEING CONVICTS

Gagged Victim Found In Cemetery After Auto Holdup

ARDMORE, Okla., Aug. 29.—(AP.)—Two highwaymen who held up John Weber, Fort Worth (Tex.) pawnbroker, kidnaped his 18-year-old daughter, Joanna, and left her bound and gagged in a cemetery, were hunted in the rugged country north of Madill, Okla., today.

Sheriff Elmer Byrd said he believed the men, one described as old and the other youthful, were escaped convicts from the state reformatory at Granite.

En route from Sulphur, Okla., to Fort Worth, Weber, his wife and three daughter were held up last night about 18 miles northeast of Ardmore, forced from their car and robbed. Then the 18-year-old girl was compelled to accompany the men in the machine.

Several hours later she was found at Lone Cedar Cemetery, nine miles away. Her hands and feet had been bound and a gag placed in her mouth.

DEATH DELAYS WALKER CASE

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 29.—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt announced today that the Mayor Walker removal hearing, which was scheduled to have been resumed at 8 o'clock tonight, will be postponed because of the death of George Walker, the Mayor's brother, at Saranac.

Before making this announcement, the Governor communicated by telephone with John J. Curtin, the Mayor's chief counsel, to learn the Mayor's wishes with respect to the removal proceedings. Curtin, in turn, talked to the Mayor.

Gov. Roosevelt said he could not state definitely when the hearing will be resumed because he did not have any knowledge of the funeral arrangements.

Supreme Court Justice Ellis J. Staley, of Albany, who was to have announced his decision this morning on Mayor Walker's petition asking that Gov. Roosevelt be restrained from removing him as Mayor of New York City, said his ruling would not be made public until this evening.

There is a marked low pressure area over the Northwest, the most intense low over that section in the past several months. Lowest barometer reported is 29.40 inches at Swift Current and Williston. It is causing cloudy weather and light rainfall over the entire Northwest country and as far east as the Great Lakes. The tropical storm is somewhere off the southern coast of Florida. Miami reports a northeast wind, maximum velocity 26 miles per hour, and the barometric pressure 29.88 inches. Only .06 inch of rain fell up to 8 a. m. There was a marked rise in temperature over the upper Mississippi Valley states, elsewhere the temperature change since yesterday morning was not important. Maximum temperatures of 90 degrees or higher occurred yesterday over all the states from the Rocky Mountains to the Atlantic Coast, and as far north as the central plains and the Ohio River.

The rivers are stationary or falling slowly. Stage at Franklin is minus 0.1 foot; Lock No. 7, Mon., 10.5; Pittsburgh, 10.9; Dam No. 4, 8.6; No. 6, 7.5; No. 10, 8.5; and No. 12, 7.2. The dams are up. HOOVER'S G. O. P. LOSS GOES ON

By COLE E. MORGAN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—(Universal.)—The swing of 1928 Republicans away from President Hoover continues as additional returns are tabulated in the nation-wide presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States.

With 106,078 votes tabulated in the poll, 62,168 are from former supporters of the President. These 62,168, however, when divided as between present Hoover and Roosevelt backers show that only 60 per cent are staying with the Republican nominee this year.

The swing away of 40 per cent of his former support to his democratic opponent, if it maintains to November, cannot help but prove a difficult handicap for Hoover to overcome if he is to be re-elected.

A good share of this defection, the poll returns indicate, is in the normally Democratic South, but it is not confined to that section by any means. Outside of the South it is most pronounced in California and the other Pacific Coast states, especially California.

Next to the Pacific Coast, the defection is most noticeable in the grain belt of the Middle West, Wisconsin, Minnesota, South Dakota, Nebraska and Missouri in particular.

COUNTY HEADS MEET ON TAX BOARD JOBS

A meeting of the County Commissioners to discuss reorganization of the Board for Assessment and Revision of Taxes, begun yesterday, resumed today with the hope expressed by Commissioner C. C. McGovern that reorganization may be completed soon after Labor Day.

The reason for the Sunday meeting was explained differently by McGovern and Commissioner W. D. Mansfield. McGovern said the three Commissioners met then "to get away from the crowds" that have been "pestering" them.

Mansfield said, however, that it was the only time at which they could get together to discuss the matter of the Tax Board appointees.

McGovern said in the reorganization, the Commissioners will take into consideration the length of service of assessors and, in the case of women, whether or not they are the sole means of support for dependents.

Upward of 150 subordinate assessors are to be named to take the place of those dismissed last July 1. It is understood the Commissioners find it difficult to agree on the appointments, the last of the job handouts of the administration.

CALIFORNIA SET FOR PRIMARY

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 29.—(AP.)—Echoes of the presidential nomination struggle at the Democratic national convention mingled with wet and dry oratory in California today as candidates made final pleas to voters who will cast ballots in the state primary election tomorrow.

Contests for nominations for United States Senator topped the list of races in which 649 candidates are seeking nomination to 134 offices. The record-breaking field of candidates is matched by the heaviest registration of voters in the state's history in which the Democrats for the first time have passed the million mark.

William G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, who announced the shift of California's votes from John N. Garner to Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt at the Democratic convention, is the storm center in the contest for the party's United States Senator nomination.

tain, are above $300,000,000. Potentially such reserves suggest the basis for expansion of bank deposits, or, on the other side of the balance sheet, bank loans and investments of approximately $3,000,000,000.

"In the past, large excess bank reserves have produced credit expansion. In the coming months, as confidence returns, and as funds are required by business, it is natural to expect that the funds will be put to use. This will tend to raise prices and to stimulate business generally."

CONDITIONS BETTER

Conditions in the United States, Mr. Robertson went on to say, were the direct result of unstabilized conditions throughout the world. Great Britain's action in going off the gold standard and turmoil in other countries brought this chaotic condition to pass, he said.

Stabilization has taken place in the past few weeks, he declared; other countries have stopped their withdrawal of gold from the United States and since, he said, "we have gained steadily in gold by an amount approximating $140,000,000."

The secondary difficulty of the depression troubles, Mr. Robertson declared to be hoarding. He said this has stopped to a considerable extent and as a result "our financial troubles have been cured."

The basic trouble today, he said, is a business stagnation.

URGES EMPLOYMENT

He declared:

"Business is sick. From 10,000,000 to 15,000,000 people are out of employment. Company after company is still operating in the red and our problem today is what, if anything, can we do about it?

"With the return of our financial situation to a sound basis, it is time someone started the ball going. We think it is industry's place to do this, and as a start we are asking every concern to begin by giving employment, paying wages and so getting the buying public on a 'buying basis.'"

Mr. Robertson was careful not to build hopes too high. He readily admitted the dangers of overproduction, but declared:

"Who would have thought the people of this country could have consumed our tremendous production in 1929? There is no limit to our demand only so far as the public is able to buy and without money to buy, certainly there will be no demand. This is our purpose—to give through needed employment that money which will return to circulation and so stimulate business generally."

The rehabilitation program is being carried on throughout the country in the 12 Federal Reserve districts, Joseph Dilworth, managing director of the plan, has within the past few weeks contacted and sounded out leaders of the nation's industries. He will continue this work, organizing sub-committees so that within two or three weeks, according to Mr. Robertson, full details of the plan will be laid down to the nation's business and industrial leaders.

NOT PARTISAN DRIVE

Mr. Robertson said there was no significance in the launching of the drive so soon before a national election, but declared:

"This depression has so hurt us all—Republicans and Democrats alike—that we look forward with anticipation to full co-operation regardless of politics."

Soliloquizing for a moment, Mr. Robertson voiced the problem facing men of affairs in the country today:

"Have we arrived at the period when we should set our respective business houses in order in preparation for an early business revival, or stated in a somewhat different way: Have we arrived at the period when the country has been sufficiently deflated to make a concerted effort to start business in the other direction not only advisable, but absolutely necessary?

"It seems clear to me that the answer to this question should be 'yes.' The work can be done to greater advantage now than later because of the favorable prices of labor and material. If done now, there will be less interference with production and in some cases labor could be employed which would substantially reduce the amount of relief being furnished to employes."

WORKING ON HOOVER REHABILITATION

JOSEPH DILWORTH

Mr. Robertson, board chairman of Westinghouse Electric, pictured in his Pittsburgh office today as he and Mr. Dilworth, managing director of the plan, worked out a course of action for the Hoover rehabilitation program originated by Mr. Robertson. The essence: Replace equipment now. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

MINE INVADERS ASK STATE AID

GILLESPIE, Ill., Aug. 29.—(AP.)—Gubernatorial sanction for a second invasion of working Southern Illinois coal fields was sought today by leaders of striking miners protesting a reduced wage scale.

Failing to obtain such sanction, with attendant assurances of protection, the strikers plan to appeal to the Federal courts, their leaders announced. They claim that under federal law they are entitled to peacefully picket the working mines.

Leaders of the striking miners previously have sought to see Gov. Louis L. Emerson but have been unable to obtain an audience because he has been ill.

William J. Roberts, of Springfield, strike leader, said it had been decided not to make a second attempt to invade Franklin County until legal rights had been established. Nearly 15,000 strikers were repulsed last week as they sought to enter Franklin County to persuade workers to join the strike.

FARM BLOCKADE TIGHTENED

DES MOINES, Ia., Aug. 29.—(AP.)—A stern warning that their lines would be "air-tight" came today from supporters of the Farmers' Holiday movement. A blockade of every highway leading into this important central Iowa market was their objective.

The picketing farmers, numbering little more than 250, were content yesterday to confine their activity to a half dozen roads. All trucks carrying produce and milk were halted with the pickets attempting to persuade the drivers to turn back with their cargo.

In only a few cases did trucks fail to run the blockade. Des Moines dairy heads estimated that 90 per cent of the city's milk supply was delivered.

Meanwhile in the city proper representatives of the Des Moines Co-Operative Dairy Association met with Farm Holiday leaders, but could not reach an agreement. The Farmers are asking the dairy association to give its support to the holiday movement.

NOTABLES SCAN POLICE KILLING

DETROIT, Aug. 29.—(INS.)—The most distinguished coroner's jury ever to sit in Detroit today was hearing the "inside story" of how David Cantor, crippled burglar, was shot to death by police who were questioning him.

Cantor, before he died of bullet wounds, stirred the entire city with his charge that the officers shot him in an effort to force a confession to burglaries he didn't commit.

Prosecutor Harry S. Toy said several witnesses would testify they saw the policemen beat and slug the burglar after he had been shot.

Patrolman Cash Ryan and Detective Vincent Hoesel, who did the shooting, claim Cantor tried to seize Ryan's gun.

The jury was recruited from the city's most prominent citizens, including two clergymen, two industrialists, a noted surgeon and a capitalist.

In Mayfair

—With—

Patricia Pitt

Merrily we roll along with only two more days of August and then gaily September will surround us with entertainments for five society brides-to-be, some of whom are Pittsburghers and some of whom formerly lived here. And their weddings, too, take place next month.

In honor of Suzanne Louise Phillips, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. S. R. Phillips, of Mt. Lebanon, whose marriage to Robert W. Timothy will occur on the tenth of the month in the Knoxville Presbyterian Church, there has been truly a deluge of parties, with still more to follow.

Her rehearsal dinner is being given by Jean Moore Davies, who is to be the maid of honor. Jean has just returned from Los Angeles where she was visiting with her mother, Mrs. Alice Moore Davies. There is to be a spinster dinner, too, but just where it will be given has not been decided.

$50,000 VIOLIN SOLD FOR $1

MILAN, Italy.—(INS.)—From Desio, a little town where Pope Pius XI was born, comes a romantic story of one of the rarest violins in the world, built by the famous Stradivarius. Twenty years ago, a wine seller in Desio bought an old violin from a small storekeeper for less than a dollar. He lost sight of it till one of his grandchildren found it in an attic, put a bit of string round it and dragged it along like a cart, on the sidewalk outside his home.

Roberto Sala, who has a job in an orchestra, saw the violin, liked the look of it, bought it for less than a dollar. But he lost his job and had to pawn his treasures to buy food. The pawnbroker carefully examined the violin which he thought would hardly be worth while lending money on, and found the name Stradivarius, the date, 1777, and the unmistakable sign the great maker always fixed under the bridge.

Sala soon found out he was the proud owner of a violin worth $50,000.

RETURN OF BLACK CLOTHES HERALDS AUTUMN'S APPROACH

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Aug. 29. — Black clothes are coming back to town. The old Paris favorite—the black costume—is always one of the first signs of approaching autumn. Women who have been spending the summer months in the country and who have begun to tire of bright colors, take refuge in new autumn and winter clothes that have black as their foundation color.

* * *

THIS YEAR'S first versions of the mid-season town costume are mostly two-piece and three-piece outfits. They are usually begun with a dress—either all-black or black with color—to which is added a single jacket or cape, or a combination of little under-jacket and added topcoat.

* * *

FOREMOST among the colors now being used by the better dressmakers to combine with black, is the family of yellows and oranges. Yellow and orange blouses are in company with black suits; all-black coats are lined with one of these bright tones, and are worn over all-black dresses that have sashes or bow trimmings of one or the other. Sometimes both yellow and orange are used together to form incrusted trimmings on black dresses or blouses.

* * *

* * *

Girl Advises Against Living With Husband's Mother

Can a man live happily with two sweethearts at the same time?

Yet that is usually what happens when Bill takes his beautiful bride home to live with Mamma.

Perhaps there's a case where it has worked; but if so, it isn't on record.

So Mary was very reluctant when Jack said that Mamma would be tickled pink to have her around. Mary had heard of mothers-in-law in general. She also had heard plenty about Jack's mother in particular, who had never been known to get along with anyone. Still, Jack assured her that everything would be jake; and we printed her doubt, and his advice.

Now comes Betty with her evidence. Which is plenty!

"Dear Sally—

"After reading Mary's letter about whether she should get married and live with her mother-in-law or not, I'd like to tell her my idea of the situation. And that is—don't.

MADE MISTAKE

"The circumstances when I married were the same. Mary, however, is facing things now, and trying to solve the problem before marriage. She is wise I wasn't. I waited and thought things would work out all right later. I was wrong.

"Hardly three months had passed when I knew I had made a mistake by agreeing to have his mother in our home. She didn't know the meaning of the word 'co-operation.' Everything, even our conversation, had to go her way, or she would cry and say we were selfish. Everywhere we went she had to go, too, or else 'he was neglecting her.'

"The only time I got to talk to my husband privately was several evenings a week when we met after work. I worked the same hours he did, and we could go home together.

"Before him, she was sweet to me; or if we had guests, she would tell them how much she loved me. But when we were alone? Ah, my friends, that was a different story! Then, even if we were alone no more than five minutes she would never fail to tell me I'd stolen her son and his love. And how she had 'sacrificed everything for him, and now look at the thanks she got, with him giving his love to someone else.' Everything I said or did was wrong.

DIDN'T TELL HUBBY

Truthfully, in the first two years of our marriage I never said or did anything to hurt her feelings. I tried so hard to be nice to her. She was so sweet to me before him that he never suspected a thing, and I never told him of the things she did and said to me.

"But the constant nagging made me more nervous all the time, and after we'd been married about two years I had a nervous breakdown. I had to quit work. I nearly went insane listening to her. I still didn't say anything to either her or him, but I got so I'd cry every time she started in on me.

"Well, one night my husband came home earlier than usual. He was about to open the door when he was surprised and shocked to hear his mother saying some very nasty things to me, and he heard me answer her: 'Mother, I've known ever since I got married that you hated me, and thought by nagging me you would make me discouraged and I'd leave. Well, you've succeeded. I'm leaving tomorrow, and if your son wants me he can hunt for me.'

"He was furious, but he came in and kissed her, then walked into the bedroom where I was crying. He lifted my face and asked me why I was crying. I didn't answer. His mother did. She said: 'I can't imagine why she is so nervous today. I do everything I can to please her.' He said: 'Mother, will you please go out and shut the door?' And she went.

"Then he held me in his arms and told me he would have searched ceaselessly till he found me, if I had gone.

"The next day he made arrangements for his mother to live elsewhere. Since that time, about a year ago, I have learned the meaning of the expression, 'heaven on earth.' I believe it was Fate that brought him home early that day.

"So I say to Mary, under no circumstances let yourself be led into an arrangement like that. It was a dreadful experience for me, and is liable to be for you, especially since your man evidently thinks his mother can do no wrong. "BETTY."

Good stuff, Betty! And it wasn't altogether the old lady's fault either, was it? Some day you'll have a boy who will be "just your very ownest," and you won't be particularly keen on having some girl glom him, will you? So—and this goes for Mary and Rose and Ellen and Jane—be patient. Try to understand the old woman's hurt, but keep out of range of her wallop!

The only independent women I know of are married.

Nothing is more over-rated than the so-called independence of women in the business world.

How many intelligent secretaries must suffer a bawling out from an overbearing boss, or some shallow sweetie she no longer wants to see?

How many unreasonable and insulting customers she must soothe and smile upon, because her employer's silly slogan is "the customer is always right?"

How many office pets and arrogant subordinates who have a pull with the powers must be catered to—for to offend would mean to be fired?

If she complains, or neglects her appearance or duties as a wife may in her home, she will be kicked out pronto with nothing like alimony!

Hints for the Household

In order to measure molasses quickly and accurately, dip the measuring cup or spoon into scalding water before measuring.

Closet accessories may be matched up in pleated chintz shelf edging to form a harmonious ensemble. Hat boxes with ends which let down are an improvement on those with a lid.

Weight plays an important part in the growth of children and once a month their weight should be taken to see if there is an upward trend denoting steady and healthful growth. If there is a slight decrease each month, investigations should follow to discover the reason and correct it before it becomes a serious one.

There is nothing quite so handy for carrying the salad to the picnic as an ice cream container. Purchase a half-dozen at the nearest ice cream store and keep them on hand for the picnics of the future. No one minds carrying the lunch to the picnic, but everyone dislikes carrying home empty kettles and plates.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

If the tooth-cleaning agent gives out unexpectedly use salt as a substitute. The crystals scour the teeth clean, have a beneficial and tonic effect upon the gums. As a rinse, salt water is excellent. Poured over the tooth brush after it has been used, salt water acts as a cleansing agent and as a preservative to the bristles.

Astringents are necessary when facial tissues take on a sag or the flesh is spiritless and flaccid. Among the simpler astringents are lemon juice, witch hazel, simple tincture of benzoin (a few drops added to a bowlful of water and used as a rinse) and of course the ice cube. A daily ironing with ice is beneficial.

Guard against wrist tension which interferes with graceful movements of the hands. Make wrists flexible by lifting and dropping the hand, closing the fingers with the downward motion. Anoint with a heavy tissue cream, form a bracelet with the fingers, massage with round-and-round sweeps, pressing firmly on the upper part of the wrist.

Wedding Plans

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I expect to marry in about two months. I would like an informal, but not private, wedding.

We would like to be married in a small church and have our friends and relatives.

1. I would like to wear a blue, not a navy blue, suit, with deep squirrel cuffs, purse, gloves and shoes, and so forth, to match in gray. I would like to wear a corsage and not carry a bouquet.

2. My sister will be my only attendant. What would be most appropriate for her to wear? Should she wear a corsage also, or carry a bouquet? H.

1 For an early Fall wedding I think that your plans for your ensemble are excellent. Blue is evidently becoming to you, since you chose it for such an important occasion, and it will be an excellent shade for Fall. I understand, by the prophecies concerning shades. Evidently, too, you have a good sense of ensembling, to plan to carry out the shade of the accessories.

Yes, I like the idea of your wearing a corsage, and, in these flowers you will be able to get a beautiful accent to the gray and blue.

2. Your sister should also wear a suit, of a shade to harmonize with your blue one. And it would be more consistent if she, too, wears a corsage, rather than carries a bouquet.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Germs From Anywhere May Bring an Attack of Cystitis

Dr. Copeland

Cystitis, as the name implies, is an inflammation of the bladder. This inflammation may result from an infection elsewhere in the body. The germs may be located in the intestines. They may come from an infection of the kidney, carried to the bladder by the urine or may be traced to the teeth, tonsils, gall bladder or appendix.

The signs of this disturbance vary, depending upon the type of germs causing the inflammation. As a rule, there is a demand for frequent emptying of the bladder, both day and night, and this may cause pain or burning. In severe cases the urine may be tinted with blood, and this is a danger signal that should not be overlooked.

Frequently symptoms of cystitis appear as a result of extreme nervousness, fatigue, exposure to cold, or drinking large quantities of irritating fluids, such as strong tea, coffee or alcoholic beverages. In these cases their restriction leads to a quick and complete recovery.

Again, cystitis may be a symptom of a serious constitutional disorder. In fact, it is commonly seen in advanced cases of diabetes, diseases of the nervous system and glandular disturbances. It may be one of the complications after childbirth. It may come from pressure of tumors or swellings of neighboring organs.

Cystitis should never be neglected. It warrants the attention of a physician. When signs of cystitus appear, do not disregard them, but consider them as warnings. It is imperative that the underlying cause be discovered.

"Hematuria" means blood in the urine. This may or may not be present in cystitis. It is an abnormal condition and may be serious if neglected. Unfortunately, many persons overlook hematuria because it is accompanied by no pain and there is no burning or other discomfort. Bear in mind that painless, persistent hematuria in an individual beyond the age of 40 may be a sign of serious disease of the bladder or an adjacent organ.

It may be a sign of tuberculosis, stone, tumor or other serious disease of the bladder. If recognized at an early stage, many distressing symptoms and perhaps a fatal complication may be prevented.

A wrong diet persistently followed may cause bladder symptoms. Excessive acidity of the urine from bad eating is a factor. Talk with your doctor if you have discomfort.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

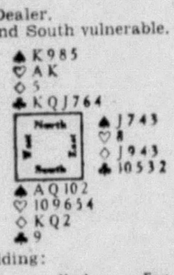
By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Bidding Slams at Duplicate

Two New York players recently participated as partners in the national congress of the American Whist League in Cleveland. Returning to New York, they recounted a rather unhappy experience. They had splendid scores on the hands which they bid for game or struck short of it, but they had a zero record in bidding for Slams.

One of the hands which resulted disastrously for this pair was:

West—Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
	1♡(1)	Double(2)	Pass
2♠(3)	Pass	4♠(4)	Pass
6♠(5)	Double	Redouble(6)	Pass
Pass	Pass

(1) A minimum Opening. West, of course, expects possibly later to show his diamond suit.

(2) North, with 4 honor-tricks, has three alternative bids—a Jump Overall of three clubs, a bid of two hearts or a Double. In view of the outcome, probably the bid of three clubs would have been better.

(3) South, with 2½ honor-tricks, correctly gives a Jump response to his partner's Take-out.

(4) Probably the root of the trouble; in view of the vulnerable Double, which shows at least 3 honor-tricks plus, North should be content to bid only three spades. To double and then to give two Raises pictures to South an even stronger hand.

(5) South might have been content to bid five spades and leave the Slam decision to his partner, but the result would probably have been the same.

(6) Again too strong bidding.

West opened first the Ace of diamonds, and with the Dummy exposed on the table, continued with the Ace of clubs. South made the rest of the tricks.

Peculiarly enough, when the scores were posted, it developed that North and South would have had a splendid score on this board had North refrained from redoubling, as many Wests failed to open and some Souths went down 2 tricks doubled at a contract of six.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Mrs. Culbertson will be glad to answer any specific question on bidding or play sent in by readers. Address her in care of this newspaper, inclosing a three-cent stamped self-addressed envelope.

Today's Questions:

Has Dummy the right to call Declarer's attention to the fact if he renounces from Dummy?

Answer—Dummy has not only the right, but it is his duty, as it is the duty of all the players at the table, to see that the Dummy hand follows suit when able to do so. In case, however, a card of the suit led is not played from Dummy and the mistake is not discovered, it cannot be corrected, nor is there any penalty for such play.

Vanishing Thames Puzzles Londoners

LONDON.—The mystery of the vanishing Thames is puzzling astonished inhabitants, who live between Windsor and Shepperton, about 50 miles outside of London. 'Lone Wolf' Indian Tribe Returns

Millions of radio fans welcome back to their loudspeakers today and tomorrow three of the most popular programs on the air.

This afternoon at 5:45, the loud war-whoop of Chief Evergreen Tree heralds the return of the "Lone Wolf Tribe," the three-a-week juvenile series to its old schedule of Monday, Wednesday and Friday over WJAS. In its previous series of broadcasts, more than 350,000 juvenile listeners were "initiated" into the tribe. Elmo Scott Watson, authority on the history of the American Indian, again writes the radio episodes, minimizing the "blood and thunder" narratives and substituting historic facts on the customs and habits of the Redmen.

Over the same station at 7 o'clock tonight, Myrt and Marge make their come-back, along with Clarence, Nell, Gwyn and the rest of the "Hayfield Pleasures" troupe, not forgetting the energetic Jack Arnold, their friend and attorney. They promise another exciting series of adventures such as won them a tremendous following last year.

And then, tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock, Gene and Glenn, creators of loveable, laughable, human characters for the early listeners, begin their third season of broadcasting over WCAE. The two boys, who skyrocketed to fame in less than a year, will be heard each Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday until October 31, when they resume their old schedule of six programs a week. For the first time since they began impersonating their famous "Jake and Lena," Gene and Glenn broadcast from Chicago instead of Cleveland, scene of their early triumphs.

John K. Chapel's "Twilight Reveries" program begins a seven-day-a-week schedule this week from KQV. Heretofore, he has been heard every day except Thursday.

* * *

Program Pointers

New Hampshire, the Granite State, is honored in the "Parade of the States" over WCAE at 9:30 tonight. With Erno Rapee conducting the orchestra and Martha Ottwood guest soprano, the program includes compositions of native musicians including Edward MacDowell, Walter Kittredge, Zo Elliott and Edwin Bagley.

A medley of traditional spirituals, including "Deep River" and "All God's Chillun," feature the Contented program over KDKA at 8.

Marion Frushone, contralto, whose "Program of Different Nations" is heard from KDKA at 4:45, sings in French, German and English. She was soloist for eight years in the Bach and Mendelssohn choirs and is the daughter of Frank Maggio, Pittsburgh orchestra leader.

Richard Crooks sings "The Flower Song" from Bizet's colorful opera, "Carmen," over WCAE at 8:30.

Another new "mystery" number straight from Tin-Pan Alley is introduced by Lanny Ross over WCAE at 7:30.

A play-by-play description of the opening game of the American Legion Junior world series, at Manchester, N. H., will be broadcast over an NBC network including WCAE at 3 tomorrow afternoon.

PARADE

Martha Attwood, soprano and former star of the Metropolitan Opera, who is guest artist in the "Parade of States" tribute to New Hampshire heard over WCAE at 9:30 o'clock tonight.

Listening In — Versatile Georgie Boswells Curious Radio Reunion

Georgie Price recalls the time when he put on a one-man program on a small radio station in Oakland, Cal., some years ago. Price was appearing in vaudeville and part of the job was to stage a radio program every Saturday night in which every person in the week's bill had a part . . . But this time something went wrong and all of the entertainers went to the wrong station, so Georgie had to play all of the parts, from a Dutch comedy trio to an imitation of Norman Brokenshire. The program over, he rushed back and asked the theater manager what he thought of the show. "A great show. Everybody did swell," the manager said. "But frankly, Georgie, you weren't quite as good as usual, yourself."

Mr. Price

The Boswell Sisters, who, not so long ago, started to ask all those who wrote in and asked for photographs to send their pictures to them, are elaborating on the idea, now . . . They're sending out questionnaires for their memory book. Fans are asked to fill in blanks telling their height, age, color of their hair and eyes, favorite books, plays, screen stars, songs, hobbies, etc.

Jay C. Flippen and the Four Eton Boys, now heard together over Columbia, were associated in vaudeville more than a decade ago . . . At the time, Flippen was doing a black-face act with a cigar, and the four singers were tumblers.

Paul Robeson had to miss the first act of "Show Boat" when he appeared as guest artist on a recent Week-end Hour.

The name of the Roundtowners, signifying that the singers are New Yorkers, is really a misnomer . . . not one of the boys hails from the metropolis. Two of them are from other countries. Evan Evans comes from England and Carlton Boxhill from Canada.

Frank Luther, tenor with the Gypsies, is an authority on American music, owning an extensive library of hill-billy, southern and cowboy songs.

Lanny Ross is using airplanes these days to get away from the noise and heat of Manhattan over week-ends.

Nite Club of Air WCAE Feature

Artists featured in the Sun-Telegraph Nite Club of the Air heard from WCAE tonight at 11 o'clock include the Andrini Brothers, "wizards of the strings," Betty Cruikshank, contralto, and Sonny Woods, with Pat Haley as master of ceremonies.

The Globe Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, brings WCAE listeners latest news of the day at 9:05 a. m. 12:15 p. m., 2:30 p. m. and 6:30 p. m.

'Blondie Of Follies' On WCAE

"Blondie of the Follies" has been dramatized for the air by Ed Harvey, program director of WCAE, and the first episode of the story will be broadcast tonight at 8:15 from the studio of WCAE. Two more episodes will be given later this week from the same studio.

The radio presentation of "Blondie of the Follies" has been adapted from the story of the film of the same name in which Marion Davies is starred. The story is now running in serial form in the Sun-Telegraph.

Fantastic Tales of Travelers in Early Days Which Were Accepted Because Nobody Could Deny Them

THE average person in earlier days had almost no real knowledge about anything a few hundred miles from his doorstep. This was because there were no newspapers, magazines, telegraphs or even mails. Books were scarce; indeed, few people could read at all.

The only contact most of our ancestors had with distant lands was through reports made by travelers on their return. And since few of these tales could have been checked up, the early travelers let their imagination run wild.

Marco Polo brought back tales of a big bird powerful enough to carry an elephant in each of its claws and in its beak

One traveler of yore told of an Eastern potentate whose defense included forts on 14,000 "Olifauntz"

What Happened?

The result was that the heads of our ancestors were stuffed full of the most ridiculous and terrifying general misinformation. They knew a great deal, but most of it just didn't happen to be true. And they had themselves to blame for many of the lies they heard. They seemed to welcome exaggerations. Curiously enough, the few travelers scoffed at were those who were honest in describing the unfamiliar things they had seen.

See for Yourself!

Some examples of the tales actually believed in the days of the first travelers are shown above and on the left. Many more are given in an entertaining article appearing in The American Weekly, next Sunday. Be sure to read it!

Stocking Marathon Shows Women New Economies

"This pair was worn 34 days—washed every night in Lux—and there's not a sign of a run. That's what I call saving money on stockings."

Elaine W. Martin

THE Lux Stocking Marathon is making a big hit with clever women who want to save money. Why not try it—see who can get the highest score? Maybe you can beat this record—34 days without a run.

Wear one pair of stockings day after day and wash them every night the Lux way. You'll be amazed to find how long they'll go without a single run.

Lux cuts down stocking runs because it saves stocking elasticity—the quality that makes stockings wear. New silk is elastic—it gives under strain—stretches and springs back into shape. But if you wash away elasticity with harsh soaps or cake-soap rubbing—the lifeless threads too often break at the least strain. Then runs start.

Wash this 2-minute way: One teaspoon of Lux for each pair. Add lukewarm water to Lux, squeeze through stockings, rinse.

Avoid ordinary soaps—cakes, powders, chips. These often contain harmful alkali. Lux has no harmful alkali. Anything safe in water is safe in Lux.

Try Lux FREE! Try this wonderful care for your stockings at our expense. Just send us your name and address, and by return mail you will receive a full-sized package of Lux free. Write today to Lever Bros. Co., Dept. KX-26, Cambridge, Mass.

Mrs. J. J. Hunter finds 1 box of LUX does 496 pieces:

16 chemises	48 suits children's underwear
12 step-ins	120 napkins
20 nightgowns	136 handkerchiefs
48 pairs men's socks

LUX saves Stockings

Preserves their E-L-A-S-T-I-C-I-T-Y makes them wear longer

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

'A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W. W.: The richest sitch-ee-ay-shun of the month was the one Ruth Phillips, the star sob-sister of the city room, found herself in this a. m. . . . Ruth went into the bathroom in her swanky East Fifty-third street apartment for her morning ablutions, but found herself unable to get out . . . Both the door and lock had jammed and even neighbors who had been attracted by her cries for help were unable to extricate her . . . So, the Emergency Squad was called . . . But these gallant heroes found it impossible to open the door and had to resort to outside ladders . . . And the next difficulty was getting into the bathroom through the window because Ruth had nothing on but a few birthday trimmings . . . However, the civic Minute Men turned their heads away from the frightened lass and finally managed to get the door open . . . Ruth was a few hours late at the desk, but refused to promise George Clark, her city editor, that she would stay out of the bathroom hereafter.

Of course, I was a little doubtful about the effect such a story would have on you, knowing how little you cared about bathing in the morning as it is . . . But I'm taking the chance, anyway.

There's a wire from Pola Negri . . . She upbraided you for printing that item, but wound up wishing you a lot of luck . . . She's one of the most charming ladies on your Grandest Canyon and one of the few you don't know personally . . . Shall I arrange to have you two meet? . . . Howard Lanin, the bandman, phoned . . . He said he would like to send you a trap drum as a gift, and that if you will accept it, he'll have the picture of your worst enemy painted on it . . . He then asked me whose picture to use, and I told him to go through the telephone directory and pick every third name . . . He replied that he didn't think he could get a drum big enough, and I said: "You're telling me?" . . . At any rate, may I have the drum when it comes? . . . I've always wanted one . . . Harry Hershfield wired to tell you that the only thing that can cross Broadway in safety is 42nd St. . . . Belle Blanche is returning to the stage tomorrow at the State, and this is one old-timer that deserves a corsage of orchids for her spunk . . . Belle was a headliner when Al Jolson was being billed as an "added attraction" . . . She was the toast of the Main Stem in the days of Hammerstein's Victoria and the New York Roof . . . And at the height of her career in 1916 she retired from the boards to ankle up to the altar with Laurence Cohen, one of Wall St's enterprising young brokers . . . And in giving up her career she stepped right out of George M. Cohan's "Hello Broadway" and right out of a $1,500-a-week salary . . . But the crash of 1929 wiped out most of the family fortune, and now at the age of 39, and as the mother of two children, Belle is coming back to try to regain some of their losses.

Jacques Curley, the wrassling-promoter, dropped in to see you . . . He wanted some information about a line you printed last week, but when he got a slant of some of your caricatures on the wall, he said he thought you'd be a great draw at one of his matches at Madison Square Garden . . . And wants you to name your own opponent and also the dates you will be available . . . I told him you would wrassle any columnist in town half your size, but Mr. Curley said that it would be very difficult to get a columnist whose head is half anybody's size . . . He seems to think you would actually be a sensation on the mat inasmuch as your face registers so much pain to start with . . . Get in touch with him at once as he'd like to put his publicity dept. to work thinking up a good sub-title for your billing . . . He said it would have to be something like "The Brute of Broadway" or "The Times Sq. Tiger" . . . The Edward Dalleys (Sally Throckmorton) are expecting a blessed event . . . As are the John (Wall St.) Malloys (Suzanne Whelan) . . . It's sad about Jimmy, the popular brush boy at Spinrad's . . . He was headed home with a lot of gifts and ice cream for his kid the other night, and when he arrived he saw the boy fall from the roof of their Harlem apartment house . . . The lad died immediately . . . You forgot to buy a new mail opener and all your letters for the past few days are stacked high on the desk . . . You didn't expect me to use my nails, did you? . . . Incidentally, I just had my hair bobbed by Ferdinand at Hudnuts . . . You remember he is Lil Tashman's barber, and you won't recognize me . . . But you seldom do around pay-day anyway.

If you want to see the Harmsworth speedboat races on Sept. 3rd, you'll have to stay up all night, as Kaye Don and Gar Wood are going to hear the starting gun at 6 in the yawning . . . Which means that there'll be very few spectators, but the reason for the early start has something to do with winds and water conditions . . . And Ray Perkins says things are so tough that radio artists are now writing fan letters to their listeners . . . A Mr. H. Noftalin of Virginia City, Montana, writes to offer you a piece of gold mine if you can help him find somebody to work it with him . . . I didn's answer the letter, but I was thinking that you know a lot of expert gold-diggers who could even find gold in a coal mine . . . It seems that Broadway is being deserted by the night-club owners in their plans for the fall . . . The drift is toward Park Ave., and already two of them have told me that they will open up on the other side of Vth Ave. . . . Charley Lucas is spending a fortune on his new East 52nd St. spot to be tagged "Montparnasse" . . . And John Steinberg and Christo are readying a similar place right on Park Ave. . . . Several other entrepreneurs are doing likewise, and the prospects for the old street this coming season appear very lean.

Harry Richman's press-lady called to say he heard that "the news depression was so bad that a lot of the columnists were taking in rumors" . . . I assured her that the depression wasn't as bad as that yet . . . That sneezing contest at Roseland drew a crowd, but it also brought the police and the health department . . . Each of the sneezers and Charley Burgess, the promotor, were served with summonses for violation of the public sneezing ordinance . . . The representative of the B. of H. insisted that the sneezers use gauze over their faces, and attorneys for the dance palace brought out voluminous legal documents to prove that a "feigned sneeze or cough" could not be regulated by the authorities . . . However, the contest blew over in scheduled time, and I left the place with a bad cold . . . I liked Helen Lynd in that Warner short at the Strand . . . As a matter of fact, the whole two-reeler evidenced that some thought had been spent on it . . . And that's rare for a short, these days . . . Mary Taussig and Jack Lammerton are renovating . . . Remember she was the girl who would have copped the Galveston beauty prize but for the sprained ankle she received on the train en route to the contest.

IN NEW COMEDY

Charles Ray Returns

Charles Ray, delineator of rustic youths, who has confined his acting talents to the stage of late years, will return to the screen in "The Bride's Bereavement," one of the comedies being made for RKO radio release. Others in this two-reeler, to be directed by Robert Hill, are Lew Cody, Aileen Pringle, Montague Love and Jed Prouty.

Lew makes his second appearance in the new two-reeler, having been a featured player in "Stout Hearts and Willing Hands," the first film that inaugurated this series last year.

Miss Pringle steps into the comedy cast from her current roles in RKO radio's "The Phantom of Crestwood" and "The Age of Consent."

Pleasure Yachts Set New Record

WASHINGTON.—(INS.)—The greatest number of pleasure yachts in the history of American yachting is now registered with the Bureau of Navigation and Steamboat Inspection of the Department of Commerce. The number of documented pleasure vessels increased 9 per cent between June 30, 1931, and June 30, 1932, and now stands at 3,692 yachts of 209,221 gross tons, of which 63 of 18,243 gross tons were steam propelled, 3,524 of 185,554 gross tons were motor propelled, 83 of 3,449 gross tons were sailing yachts, and 22 of 2,125 gross tonnage were equipped as houseboats.

'Merry-Go-Round' Stars Lee Tracy

Having just completed her work as the feminine lead opposite Charles Bickford in Columbia's "The Last Man," Constance Cummings next will be seen as the politically wise daughter of an old United States Senator, in "Washington Merry-Go-Round." Lee Tracy has the lead in this picture against a background of national politics.

Barbara Weeks Plays In 'Night Mayor'

Movie Flyer Crashes

By WALLACE X. RAWLES
International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 29.—(INS.)—Motion picture people almost daily risk their lives to put punch in pictures.

A cablegram from Umanak, Greenland, to Carl Laemmle, at Universal Studios, revealed that "almost a miracle" has saved the lives of Dr. Arnold Fanck's associates making "S. O. S. Iceberg" among icebergs off the west coast of Greenland.

Ernst Udet, noted German stunt flyer, was making a low flight over a huge iceberg for the benefit of cameras located on top of the berg, when the engine cut out and his low altitude caused his ship to fall headlong into the icy waters of the Arctic, according to the cablegram.

The propeller was broken. Workmen and Eskimos saved Udet from drowning.

Lens Takes Closeup

The closest "closeup" was filmed in Hollywood last week. Helen Hayes was photographed two inches from the lens for a scene in Paramount's "A Farewell to Arms," which Frank Borzage is directing.

The greatest problem was to light Miss Hayes' face without any light rays striking the lens and thus spoiling the shot.

Marion Davies and Jimmy Durante do a travesty on the love scene from "Grand Hotel" between John Barrymore and Greta Garbo. It's the funniest scene you've ever witnessed on the screen. Miss Davies does other impersonations of famous people which she is celebrated for in Hollywood. The party that Blondie throws is great fun, but it's only part of a picture which contains thrills and tears galore, one of the finest entertainments created this year by the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios.

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

By MARK HELLINGER

Thoughts

THE SCENE is Times Square. The time is 8:30 p. m. The characters are many. A legless beggar sits on the hot sidewalk with his back to the curb. His face is thin and shadowy. His eyes are dying coals. His hands quiver as they extend the dirty cap to passersby. His yellow forehead is beaded with sweat. The crowds pass him by in a steady stream . . .

THE YOUNG GIRL: I wonder how he lost his legs—in the war, maybe. He's about 30. Yes, I guess he lost them in a battle. Maybe he's got a medal. Ugh. He's so repulsive, though. He's only half a man now. I wonder if he's married? No. That could never be. Then again, you can't tell. Maybe some woman thinks he's another Clark Gable. I shouldn't be thinking such things. I wonder what he's thinking about? Why does he stare at me like that? His eyes look so accusing. Well, I must move on . . .

* * *

THE BANKER: Look at that smile on that panhandler's face! And him with no legs! How can anyone like that smile? It must be awfully hot on the sidewalk. He's sweating, too. Maybe I ought to slip him a coin. It might bring me some luck. Goodness knows I need it. No. I won't do it. Too many people looking. Besides, curtain time is only 10 minutes off. Can't keep Mazie waiting. She gets a grouch on so easily lately. She's never been the same since I took the town car away from her. But I couldn't help it. They were after me like a pack of wolves. If they ever found out—I'd commit suicide. No I wouldn't either. That's a ghastly death. That's all they've got to look forward to. I wonder if he's thinking of death. But he's smiling. His mind is probably distorted. It should be. Legless. Holy Mackerel! I forgot to buy Mazie those sheer stockings! . . .

THE MOTHER: That same beggar. Why doesn't he go somewhere else? I can't look at him. After this I'll use Sixth avenue. But he does look like poor Ronnie. Poor Ronnie. They say he never knew what happened. The papers said he walked into the chair smoking a cigaret. Ronnie would be like that. He was always so brave. Heaven knows I tried to keep him away from that gang. I knew he'd get into trouble. Why didn't the Governor do something? I pleaded with him enough that morning. I told him that Ronnie wasn't a bad boy at heart. Even life imprisonment would have been better. He looked so much like this poor beggar. The same expression around the eyes. Sad, like. Still, I'd rather have Ronnie dead than a beggar without legs. It must be terrible, sitting there watching people walk by. I'd love to peek inside of his mind.

THE RACKETEER: This bird seems to make out pretty well. Wonder what his take is? I could speak to him—but he might squawk. Still, there's no reason why he should mop up all the gravy. I've had an eye on him for weeks. He probably owns a big apartment house on the Drive and has a mortgage on Mayor Walker's limousine. That type is always lousy with money. And yet he always has that sad mug. So sunk. So down and out. People just naturally dig down in their jeans and shell out. Nobody misses a dime—much. But they seem to be passing him up tonight. It's his own fault. He oughtn't to look so sad. He ought to look as though he's in pain. People can't stand pain. People can't stand nothing. I'm beginning to get the creeps myself. Yet, he may be laughing behind that mug of his. How can you tell what's going on in this skull? Aw, I'll slip him a nickel. It's pretty tough to be without legs. Especially when you want to run . . .

* * *

THE COP: If I had my way, every one of these bums would be railroaded out of the city. They're all petty racketeers. Two legs off, and he spends the rest of his life begging. I wonder why the lieutenant told me to keep hands off this one? After all, there's a city ordinance against begging. But Madigan says, "Let him alone, Mike. It's a tough case." That's no excuse. There are thousands of tough cases, worse than this. Maybe Madigan is getting something out of this. Huh. He sees me now. He looks scared. I know what's in his mind. I'll bet that lug thinks I'm going to lock him up . . .

* * *

THE DOCTOR: Now there's a case for a psychiatrist. A legless beggar. What kind of a mental twist would the loss of two limbs effect in a mind like his? Paranoia? Perhaps. He probably thinks that the world took his legs from him. Therefore, the world owes him a living. Consequently, he begs for a living. But—Oh! Now I remember! Yes, that's the one! Isn't it strange that I should see him! Over at the Polyclinic. They brought him in at 4 in the morning. I had to get up. His legs were crushed. Some drunken kid ran him down. A police lieutenant's son. Monoghan. Or Madigan. And the copper begged him not to press charges. And the beggar agreed. And the poor fellow complained of pains in the feet and didn't know his legs were off . . .

* * *

THE HAM ACTOR: Well, he's got an audience at least. All he has to do is sit there and watch the money roll in. Ah, well. That's life for you, as Nietzsche once said. Or was it somebody else who said that? Anyway, it was a brilliant line. Too bad about Lon Chaney. He could play parts like this to perfection. I wonder how he fixed his legs so that he looked legless? Maybe this beggar knows the secret. It would be funny if he really had legs. What does a bird like him think about all day? I'll bet he's got dough. Say, I wonder if he could be touched for a buck? . . .

* * *

THE CHILD: He looks so funny without legs. But momma says I musn't laugh at him. People who laugh at cripples get that way themselves. Maybe he laughed at a cripple when he was a little boy. Gee, it must be terrible to be without legs. How can a feller play games like baseball and tag and things? But I'll bet he gets lots of nickels. Lookit all the movies he can go to if he wants to. Gosh, it wouldn't be so terrible without legs if you could go to the movies all the time. You could see Buck Jones in the day and Tom Mix at night. Gee, that would be swell. He's lucky, I think. I'll bet right now he's thinking of going to the movies tonight. Oh, look! He's smiling at me. But I musn't smile back. God might think I'm laughing.

* * *

THE BEGGAR: Wonder how much I made today. Seventy-fifty, I guess. Better stick around a little while longer. Gotta make 12. I'll never take a tip from a newspaperman again. That horse cost me four bucks! . . .

Six-Foot He-Man Heroes Overthrow Latins On Screen

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 29.

The overthrow of the slight, pantherlike Latin hero typified by Valentino, is complete with the influx of tall male stars.

The majority of reigning heroes are well over six feet. Johnny Weissmuller, M-G-M's Tarzan, is tallest with an elevation of 6 feet 3 inches. Next to him stand Gary Cooper and Charles Farrell, who come within half an inch of Weissmuller.

Next in height are Charles Starrett, Warren William and David Newell. They are six feet two.

In Paramount's "Hot Saturday," the camera lens has to adjust itself to the altitude of two big men. Cary Grant, at six feet one and a half and Randolph Scott, at half an inch less.

J. Weismuller

Others who top the six-foot mark are Clark Gable, John Boles, Ralph Bellamy, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., George Brent, the two new Universal stock actors—Onslow Stevens and Carlton Kadell, Joel McCrea and Ralph Graves.

BOULEVARD CHATTER

Greta Garbo has answered Warners' offer with a No. Lily Damita gets the girl role in "The Match King." . . . Tala Birell is taking tests at Universal for their sleeping sickness yarn, "Nagna" . . . Kathryn Hepburn uses an expensive car and chauffeur all day to drive her around the lot . . . Alexander Marky, in town from making "Mara" in New Zealand, entertains the last contingent of home-going Olympic athletes . . . Sam Coslow has sung a record of Maurice Chevalier's new theme song, "Love Me Tonight" . . . Gary Cooper's pet chimpanzee has been sent necklaces, bracelets, knitted underwear, miniature slippers, a hat and a cake by fans.

FEW SHORT STARS

Hardly any in the new ranks of stars are under six feet. Here are some of the newcomers and survivors from the pre-superman era: William Powell, Kent Taylor, George O'Brien, Richard Dix, Ricardo Cortez, Bruce Cabot, Nils Asther, Lionel Barrymore (without his stoop), Wallace Beery, Robert Montgomery, Walter Huston and Boris Karloff. They are six feet or over.

Verily, the tall man has come into his kingdom.

"You're not old enough to give me orders," said the boy.

"Say, how old do you think I am?" asked Jolson.

"You're about 42," was the answer, "because my brother is 21 and he's half-witted!"

After spending $100,000 preparing for "Laughing Boy," Carl Laemmle, Jr., has indefinitely postponed its production.

Lew Ayres

The lucky youth, if they ever find him, must have a Lew Ayres personality with an authentic Indian physiognomy. Lew, himself, is out because of his blue eyes.

Universal has brought candidates from every part of the country and all the Indian reservations. They have tested 75 youths without success.

Film 'Adds' 59 Years To Star's Life

Transitions of an aging character using more than 200 differing treatments of makeup were created for Richard Dix in RKO-Radio's "The Conquerors," which co-stars Dix and Ann Harding. The story of "The Conqueror" opens with Dix as a young man of 26, in a period around 1873, and gradually takes him through the most heroic phases of American accomplishment to the modern day, leaving him as an old man of 85.

U. S. TO OPEN HOME LOAN BANK HERE IN OCTOBER

TRADE RIVALRY INCREASED BY P. O. STRIKE

Contractor Denies Pact With New Firms Backed by Union

River interests are reported watching developments in Pittsburgh's postoffice strike which are apparently about to throw quantities of sand and gravel business to a new distributing company organized by John Douglas, Jr.

Declaring his contract with the Pittsburgh Gravel Company could not be broken, D. G. Aronberg, head of the Aronberg-Fried Company, contractors on the building, today denied he had entered into negotiations with Douglas. Aronberg said:

"We have no agreement or understanding with Douglas, either verbal, written or implied, and nothing of the sort is even under consideration."

STRIKE DEADLOCKED

There are no immediate prospects for the settlement of the strike of hoisting engineers. At a conference Saturday between union officials and members of the Building Trades Employers' Association, the union insisted the association approve an agreement to employ union engineers on sand and gravel hoists and insist on their employment by firms with which the association does business.

Peter J. Dagnall, business agent of the hoisting engineers, has signed agreements with Douglas and with the Allegheny Sand Company and the Henry Hudson Sand and Gravel Company at Kittanning, providing for the use of union engineers on hoists from barge to bank.

UNION EMPLOYER

Asked how he had first got in touch with Dagnall, Douglas said he has known Dagnall for a number of years, having employed union engineers on numerous excavation jobs including the William Penn Hotel addition.

Opposition from other river interests developed when he attempted to buy equipment, Douglas declared. He said:

"When I tried to buy a steamboat, one company ran out on me. The same boat is advertised today but I couldn't buy it. One company refused to sell me a wharfboat."

The two Kittanning companies are preparing to put on more men, according to reports there. Thus far they have not been employing union engineers on dredges or on bank equipment, officials stated.

MISS HELEN WASSELL

Tech Graduate Finds Latherless Cream To Rout Beards

Instead of complaining about men's beards, as most women do, Helen E. Wassell, Carnegie Tech graduate, did something about them.

A chemist at Mellon Institute for Industrial Research, Miss Wassell dropped a little of this and that in a tube, turned on the gas and—out came a new shaving cream, latherless and guaranteed, as the advertisements say, to calm the most rebellious bristle.

Miss Wassell did her research through the Kaufmann department stores industrial fellowship, and her experiments covered an extensive period.

E. J. Kaufmann, president of the concern, explained that Miss Wassell, using several new chemicals, found that when synthesized they seemed to possess desirable soothing effects on the skin. He added:

"The first few compositions, distributed among the men at Mellon Institute, left much to be desired. Gradually, she adjusted the composition. The best of these were distributed among groups in Pittsburgh and New York, and the final formula was selected from a poll of these opinions."

Miss Wassell has done other research in cosmetic, textile cleaning and preservation and other branches of industrial chemistry.

'NERVOUS' PAIR ROBS STORE IN BRUSHTON

Gunmen Escape With $500; Hill Market Owner Held Up

Two extremely nervous young bandits robbed the Rom's Cash and Carry Grocery at 625 Brushton avenue of $500 shortly before 8 a. m. today.

The robbers entered the grocery and confronted Manager Maurice Kwasser, of 6320 Caton street, and David Rea, 19, a clerk, of 2020 Spring street, Mt. Oliver, with revolvers. They drove Kwasser and Rea into a rear room of the store.

Learning that a safe containing last Saturday's receipts was in the front store room, one of the bandits forced Kwasser to open it.

After obtaining the money, the robbers told their victims to make no outcry for five minutes. Then they backed out of the store and disappeared. Police were unable to learn whether the pair had an automobile.

Two Negroes held up David Bloomfield in his market at 2138 Wylie avenue today and escaped with $7.37.

BELLEVUE BANK REPORT FILED

An appraisal of the closed Citizens Trust Company of Bellevue, filed in court today by William D. Gordon, state secretary of banking, shows total assets of $868,968 and liabilities of $1,085,787.

The assets include stocks and bonds appraised at $254,114; mortgages, $284,704; mortgages deposited to secure mortgage certificates, $175,800; bank building, $60,000. The building was valued at $161,742 on the books of the bank.

An initial dividend of 15 per cent recently was paid depositors. A group of depositors, represented by Attorney John E. Winner, had protested the delay in filing of the appraisal.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

BISHOP, Cal., Aug. 29.—Well, I see where Mr. Roosevelt in New Jersey had a big Democratic rally, and mosquito rodeo. There was one hundred Democrats there applauding or fighting mosquitos, you couldn't tell which. A few Republicans were there to cheer the insects on in their good work. The original Roosevelt used to call it pussyfooting." This one took in the whole cat. He called it "pussycatting."

Will Rogers

Charlie Chaplin says he is afraid his boys will grow up and find out they were actors once. Charlie, actors are like politicians, they never grow up.

My company has to watch me every day to keep me from playing Little Lord Fauntleroy. There is nothing as "kittenish" as an old senator campaigning. You got to watch him, or he will parade right out on the rostrum with rompers on.

Yours, Will.

FISH PERFORM TAILSPINS

Fish from many sections of the world are showing their dives, tailspins and other stunts for the edification of Pittsburghers interested enough to go to Phipps conservatory.

The exhibit, which includes 150 varieties, opened yesterday. Simultaneously the Victoria Regius water lily burst into bloom, as Superintendent of Parks James Moore predicted.

The fish show is sponsored by the Allegheny Aquarists Association, and it has become an annual event in Schenley Park's conservatory.

Many odd species are included in the exhibit, among them the electric fish which gives a shock that can be registered by a voltmeter. In the Art pet shop a number of strange fish are being shown. One is a Fundulopanchay, believe it or not, a native of Cape Lopez, South Africa, a fish that has swam nearly around the world.

Pinchot Relief Group In Session Here

State Aid Committee Holds Initial Meeting

The Allegheny County Emergency Relief Committee, formed by Gov. Gifford Pinchot to advise on distribution of the county's share of state relief, was to hold its first meeting today in the offices of its chairman, State Senator Frank J. Harris.

Preliminary plans for apportioning food orders among local relief organizations were to be discussed.

Meanwhile, with no state aid in prospect for a week or more, the Allegheny County Emergency Association and the Welfare Fund groups started another week of issuing insufficient food orders.

COUNTY FUNDS

County funds continued as the sore spot, with only enough money—$104,428—left to last until September 10, according to estimates of the Emergency Association. The situation in the city was that, while there was sufficient money to issue full food orders of 90 cents per person weekly, this could not be done until the county coffers are full, since relief leaders say it would be unjust to discriminate between city and county.

There remains no prospect for full relief for some time to come, however, since the state will be furnishing only sufficient funds for orders averaging, at the current relief load of approximately 37,000 families on the Emergency Association and the Welfare Fund organizations in city and county, about 50 cents per week.

166,500 DEPENDENTS

At an average of 4.5 persons in each family, there are approximately 166,500 persons dependent upon those two groups for aid. Almost as many are dependent upon independent groups and charities, it is said.

Although state aid of 50 cents per person per week could be supplemented in the city, from existing funds, the county, without funds, will prevent such action in the city as well. Only hope remains for Gov. Pinchot's approval of a bill passed by the recent Legislature, authorizing the Poor Board to issue bonds for relief use.

Sale of such bonds would require at least three weeks for legal advertising.

You Can't Tell What a V. P. Will Decide to Say

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

As a dead-in-the-wool voter we want to hear more speeches from the vice presidential candidates if only for the novelty.

We know what the top candidates are going to say. But you never can tell what the juniors will warble.

What are the bonds between the V. P. and his president? Is it a silent partnership? Is it a speaking relationship? Or is it only a nodding acquaintance and that nod in the affirmative?

If he is listed in the line-up for the big game he surely rates a time at the bat.

Forget that little Topeka thing and let's start life all over again. Is the V. P. an active participant or is he a paper-turner for a concert pianist?

CHIEF DEFENDS FIREMEN

Fire Chief Richard L. Smith today denied reports that intoxicated firemen were riding on No. 10 Engine Company pumper when it crashed into a traffic "blinker" at South Main street and Mansfield avenue. He said the men would not be suspended.

William Miller, of 447 South Main street; M. J. Stiltz, 68 Neptune street, and E. J. Swearingen, of 701 Attica street, witnesses, told police Driver James McGuire and Capt. Charles J. Byers seemed to have been drinking.

City Police and Fire Surgeon Dr. D. E. Sable, on orders of Chief Smith, examined the men after the accident and said he found no evidence that they had had any liquor.

The accident occurred as the pumper returned from a grass fire. The truck was damaged and the blinker knocked from its base.

The committee, headed by Representative J. B. Shannon, of Missouri, held hearings for two days in the Tennessee city.

11 DIRECTORS TO SUPERVISE OPERATION

Best, Federal Board Attending National B. & L. Convention

The Pittsburgh Federal Home Loan Bank will be established here late in October, following selection of 11 directors to supervise its operation throughout Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Delaware in lending money on mortgages held by savings banks, building and loan associations, insurance companies and individuals.

Announcement was made by Attorney William E. Best last night, just before he left for French Lick where the board of directors of the federal bank, which will direct operations of the 12 branches in the United States, will attend a convention of the United States Building and Loan League, of which Best is chairman.

Best is also a member of the bank's board.

Subscriptions for membership in the Pittsburgh bank will be received for 30 days following next meeting of the board of directors in Washington, September 6. Capital in this district will be $12,500,000 which, Best says, will probably be raised easily.

Building and Loan associations, savings banks and insurance companies will be eligible to subscribe a minimum of one per cent of the unpaid principal of their home mortgages.

The same organizations, then, can borrow 12 times as much as their subscriptions with mortgages as security for short term obligations.

Long term loans will be made by the bank, which will sell bonds secured by mortgages pooled by applicants for the loans, Best said.

The district home loan banks have no right to establish branch offices in their territories, as the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland has here, Best said. It is understood, however, that they have the privilege of establishing agents in other cities to take applications for loans.

Home Loan Bank Stock Sales Campaign Opens

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—(AP.)—A $128,000,000 sales campaign, on the success of which will depend the amount of federal subscription to the new Home Loan Banks, today was begun by the system's directing board.

Chairman Fort of the board was hopeful the entire fund—the aggregate capital assigned to the 12 banks in as many districts—will be subscribed by institutions eligible for membership in the system. These are building and loan associations, insurance companies and savings banks.

But if subscriptions fall short, the Reconstruction Corporation is authorized to buy up to $125,000,000 of the system's capital stock.

YOUTHS FIND GANG VICTIM

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 29.—(INS.)—A well-dressed unidentified man, apparently a New Yorker, was "taken for a ride" and his body, badly riddled with bullets, was dumped from an automobile at Thirty-third and Tasker streets here today.

Murder squad detectives here expressed the belief that the victim was either "knocked off" by Philadelphia gangsters for having "muscled in" on their racket or else he was killed by New York rivals and his body was brought to this city to make identification more complicated.

The body was discovered on a lot by two youths, Anthony Fresconi and Howard Gross, who took a short cut while work-bound.

The victim appeared to have been in his late 30's and wore a gray suit of expensive texture and a gray cap. The labels disclosed that the apparel had been bought in New York.

GIRL SWIMMER RESCUED

Until today Mary Rubinich, 19, of 4925 Plum way, considered herself as much at home in the water as a duck.

Her change of mind came late yesterday when she was pulled from the city pool in Lawrence Park by City Life Guard H. Gollicher, after, it was reported, she had gone down twice. Miss Rubinich explained:

"I was poised on the edge of the pool for a dive. A crowd of children playing nearby accidentally ran into me and I toppled into the water. I gulped an awful lot of water. I remembered nothing after that."

Two 'Kidnaped' Men Found Arrested

Harry Penner, 35, of 502 Cato street, and Ben Ableson, 44, of 89 Logan street, reported "kidnaped" yesterday after being driven off in a big sedan, were located today by police at the office of Justice of the Peace John T. Small, East McKeesport.

Detectives said the men, who disappeared while picketing a non-union bakery shop in the Hill District in connection with a strike of union bakers, were arrested on informations made out before Small. Detectives said they were unable to learn the charges.

12 Boats Burned In $600,000 Fire

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Aug. 29.—(AP.)—A dozen charred hulks floated in the Sacramento River today, remnant of a fleet of river craft ravaged by fire.

Starting early Sunday, presumably from an explosion on the Flora, flames caused damage estimated by officials of River Lines at $600,000. Fire was spread by further explosions, spurting gasoline and oil, and flaming craft which drifted from their moorings.

Monessen Suspends Police in Gas Theft

PONDER RETRIAL IN '3D DEGREE'

MINEOLA, N. Y., Aug. 29.—(AP.)—A decision is expected soon as to whether the prosecution will press for a second trial for three policemen accused of manslaughter in the "third degree" killing of Hyman Stark, youthful prisoner.

After 19 hours' deliberation, an exhausted jury reported yesterday a "hopeless deadlock" and was discharged. Jurors said that toward the end of the long session they had stood 11 to 1 for acquittal for Detectives Leslie W. Pearsall and Harry Zander, and 7 to 5 for conviction of Deputy Chief Frank J. Tappen on a charge of assault.

Stark died after being questioned in police headquarters about a robbery in which he was accused of striking a detective's mother. The prosecution said he was beaten with rubber hose, blackjacts, fists and kicked by police seeking "revenge."

Ten policemen have been indicted for assault in connection with the case, and their trial is set for later.

SINKING EARTH PERILS HOMES

Settling of foundations and sinking and cracking of walls supporting their homes gave rise to fears by residents of May street, Castle Shannon, today, of further damage.

They blamed the removal of supports in an abandoned coal mine over which May street, a new development, is located.

Among those reporting damage was C. E. Hilliard, of 61 May street, who said a one-inch gas main had been broken by the settling of his house, releasing fumes.

Motorcycle Skids, Upsets, Youth Hurt

Michael Tetz, 21, of Wall, was recovering in the McKeesport Hospital today from injuries suffered yesterday when his motorcycle skidded and overturned in the Lincoln highway near East McKeesport.

State Highway Patrolman F. R. Clark was knocked from his motorcycle by an automobile in the Castle Shannon road and was slightly injured. William Wagner, of 437 Spencer street, Mt. Oliver, was arrested by Clark's companion, Patrolman P. Kettren.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 29.—(AP.)—Leopold Stokowski, champion of the unique and modernistic in music, will confine his activities with the Philadelphia Orchestra largely to "the acknowledged masterpieces" this season, and the relation of economic stress to the public musical taste seems to have been responsible.

Announcing the change in policy, directors of the orchestra association explained they felt that at times such as the present, "audiences prefer music which they know and love and that performances of debatable music should be postponed until a more suitable time."

With these opinions, the statement added, the conductors of the orchestra fully concur.

BUYER'S GUIDE AND BUSINESS REVIEW

U. S. STATISTICS SHOW STEADY PROGRESS

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 29.—Perusal of an exhaustive statistical study covering continental United States just completed by the Hearst newspapers, should have a far-reaching effect toward restoration of confidence as regards the nation's future.

The figures, of great importance to businessmen throughout the nation, show the country's ever-onward march over the years 1913, 1916 and 1931.

Taken from the highest authorities, their widespread dissemination should prove a tonic to the present psychological state of the national mind, now recovering from fright brought about by recent business ills.

Total wealth of the United States in actual current dollars as reported by the National Industrial Conference Board, for instance, mounted progressively to $329,700,000,000 in 1931 from $251200,000,000 in 1916 and $192,500,000,000 in 1913, a per capita wealth of $2,677 last year, as against $2,493 in 1916, and $1,994 in 1913.

NATIONAL INCOME UP

Total national income, in actual dollars, as reported by the same sources increased to $55,000,000,000 in 1931 from $45,400,000,0000 in 1916 and $34,400,000,000 in 1913.

Wages, salaries, pensions, compensations, etc., had jumped to $29,524,000,000 in 1931, from $23,567,140,000 in 1916, and $18,125,360,000 in 1913, as shown by the National Bureau of Economic Research.

Percentage of national income was 53.68 per cent last year against 51.91 per cent in 1916 and 62.69 per cent in 1913 (1919 percentage applied to 1931 national income, to arrive at estimate for 1931).

The amount of wages, salaries, pensions, compensations, etc., per gainful worker as shown by the bureau, had reached $650 in 1931, against $585 in 1916 and $469 in 1913.

Department of Commerce figures show 48,332,000 persons (male and female) were gainfully employed in 1931, against 40,303,094 in 1916 and 38,604,962 in 1913, a percentage of 39.8 per cent of total population last year as against 40 per cent for each of the other two periods.

23,043,000 AUTOS

There were 23,043,000 automobiles registered in the United States last year compared with 2,446,000 in 1916, and 1,258,000 in 1913, according to the United States Census, while figures submitted by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce show that in 1931 a total of 2,472,359 automobiles were manufactured, as against 1,617,708 in 1916, and 485,000 in 1913.

The wholesale value of such automobiles last year was $1,450,000,000, against $1,082,378,000 in 1916 and $443,902,000 in 1913.

Total values of merchandise exported from the continental United States as the result of world-wide business stagnation depleting the buying power of other nations, had dropped to $2,582,237,000 last year, as compared with $4,420,846,000 in 1916, but exceeded the 1913 total of $2,539,837,000, as reported by the Department of Commerce.

BANK DEPOSITS GAIN

Deposits in state and private banks and trust companies as pointed out by the Department of Commerce, had mounted to $20,584,700,000 in 1931, whereas in 1916 the total was $9,607,000,000 and in 1910 $5,825,400,000.

The number of banks, meantime, had decreased to 14,012 in 1931 from 18,070 in 1916 and 14,161 in 1913.

Deposits in savings banks (including mutual and stock banks) likewise soared, the total last year aggregating $11,234,611,000, as against $5,089,503,349 in 1916 and $4,070,486,246 in 1910.

No less gratifying was the gain in depositors, the total for 1931 having jumped to 14,256,834 from 11,148,392 in 1916, and 9,143,000 in 1913.

Gains in deposits of national banks alone were even more impressive, the total last year having reached $22,198,240,000, as against $8,143,048,000 in 1916 and $5,593,461,551 in 1913, as shown by Department of Commerce figures.

The number of national banks, on the other hand, dropped to 6,805 last year from 7,571 in 1916, and 7,404 in 1913.

BUILDING EXPANSION

From compilations by Bradstreet's it is shown that building expenditures in 120 identical cities had soared to $1,005,626,000 in 1931, as against $919,435,203 in 1916, and $814,509,360 in 1913.

Statistics on carloadings are not available prior to 1918, in which year the total, as announced by the American Railway Association, was 857,540; the 1931 total was 716,776.

Although total tonnage likewise showed a decrease, freight revenue showed a substantial increase. Tonnage last year was 1,594,574,000, against 2,179,696,043 in 1916, and 1,915,001,926 in 1913, but freight revenue as announced by the association, increased to $3,251,566,000 last year from $2,560,988,111 in 1916, and $2,140,083,394 in 1913.

A healthy gain in estimated retail sales is another encouraging item. Federal Reserve Board indexes for department stores, applied to retail census of distribution of 1929, indicates total retail sales of $41,019,000,000 last year, as against $35,158,000,000 in 1919.

If a single additional reassurring fact were needed, the Department of Interior supplies it by showing a total enrollment of 924.27 male and female students in universities, colleges and professional schools last year, compared with 329,034 in 1916, and 267,817 in 1913.

11, Insurance His Birthday Gift

WALTER, JR. WALTER E. CLOSE, SR. MAURICE B. COHILL

THRIFT POLICY ASSURES BOY EDUCATION

Although Walter E. Close, Jr., of 511 Walnut road, Ben Avon, will not be 11 years old until October, his father has already made provision for his college education when he reaches the age to choose a vocation or profession. With the vision and foresight which delights the heart of every American father, Walter Close has arranged with his friend, Maurice B. Cohill, a local representative of the Equitable Life Assurance Company, to help teach his boy the invaluable habits of thrift and economy by inducing systematic saving. He said:

"I could think of nothing better for my son's eleventh birthday gift than to start him on a systematic savings and thrift plan. I hope it will provide him with an incentive to save. I believe it will give him a sense of the value of money, which will tend to stabilize his character and strengthen his social and economic responsibilities and opportunities in later life. 'As the twig is bent, the tree's inclined.'"

Securing maximum protection at such an early age gives the additional advantage of a minimum rate, Mr. Cohill pointed out. He said:

"Life insurance is always purchased on a rising market—the greater the age, the greater the premium. When he starts in business life, his accumulative insurance will help him establish credit. When he becomes self-supporting, he will be a jump ahead of the man who waits until he is established in the business world to take out insurance for the protection of his family."

Walter, Jr., is delighted with his unique birthday gift. Although he is now studying music, he has not yet decided what profession he wants to enter when he grows up. But regardless of his choice, thanks to the wisdom of his forward-looking father, Walter will have the assurance all through his adolescent years, that his educational fund will be ready for him when he needs it.

RIVER TRAFFIC HEAVIEST IN 3 YEARS

River passenger travel and freight traffic in and out of Pittsburgh have been heavier this summer than they have since 1929, according to John Barton, general manager of the Ohio River Transportation Company, foot of Wood street, Pittsburgh. He said:

"We usually discontinue to run the steamer Queen City with its tonnage of 1,000 tons, the last of August. But this year the 600-ton capacity of the Senator Cordill will be inadequate for the heavy freight loads of steel and other commodities scheduled for transportation during September and part of October."

This pick-up in the transportation of steel by river is a very good indication that business is increasing, Mr. Barton said. He continued:

"We are carrying more steel now than we have since 1929. There is a great deal of activity down the river at Charleston, W. Va., and Ashland, Ky. The mills there are operating for the first time in three years."

More inquiries have been made this year than for several years concerning passenger accommodations on the river boats to Cincinnati, Louisville and Memphis, Mr. Barton said. He continued:

"Pittsburghers are evidently beginning to realize the vacation possibilities of a seven-day boat trip along the beautiful Ohio River from the Iron City to the Queen City and return. The distance by river from Pittsburgh to Cincinnati is 468 miles, making the round trip nearly 1,000 miles, the longest boat ride available on the Ohio River. Now is the nicest time of the year for this trip. The trees and foliage along the river banks are in abundance. The leaves will be turning soon and there is a nice breeze on deck all day long."

Builders Urge Full Use Of Measures Provided By Relief Act

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—(AP.)—All the forces of the Associated General Contractors of America are aligned in a campaign to have the country take full advantage of the provisions of the emergency relief act to assure the fullest measure of relief intended.

The various executive departments of the association, which is comprised of all factions of the construction industry, will meet in Washington prior to the parleys of the Construction League of the United States, on October 12, and the general assembly of the national conference on construction which is scheduled to take place on the following day. The contractors' association is a member of both these councils and has been a steadfast advocate of a national construction program as the only means available at this time to create employment, develop purchasing power and revive industry.

Seek Action Before Winter

"The emergency relief and construction act will go for naught," the association declares, "unless the states and local communities fully avail themselves of its construction provisions and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation acts promptly upon applications for loans so that an adequate self-liquidating construction program may be under way before winter. We are now devoting our full energies to this end, so that there may be definite and early relief for unemployment and business."

Association Aiding Work

The local branches and chapters of the Associated General Contractors have been active since passage of the relief act in encouraging through the national committee on trade recovery the immediate undertaking of all worthy self-liquidating construction projects contemplated in the act. The closer co-ordination and intensification of this activity will constitute one of the principal topics of discussion at both the contractors' and league meetings.

STEEL MAKING SHADE LOWER

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 29.—(AP.)—A quickening in raw materials and a 9¾ per cent lift in the scrap from composite sounded an optimistic note in the steel industry, Steel said today in its weekly trade review.

This quickening in raw materials, as contrasted by a lag in finished steel production, is almost a complete reversal of the order of recovery in 1921, the magazine declared.

Then steel buying led the way, with railroad requirements playing an important role, and it was 30 to 45 days after the turn that pig iron and scrap participated in a measured degree.

Steel making operations for the past week surrendered their one-point gain and retreated to 14-15 per cent, and Steel foresaw a subsidence two weeks hence to the 12 per cent rate of the July 4 week. But from this valley, it was pointed out, the industry is confident of a rapid recovery.

Insull Collateral Auction Off Again

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—(INS.)—The auction of the collateral of Insull Utilities Investment and Corporation Securities Company to be held by New York banks was again postponed today until noon, August 31.

The auction of Middle West Utilities common stock held by the Central-Hanover Bank and Trust Company and the Guaranty Trust Company, as collateral loans to Insull Utilities Investment and Corporation Securities Company was also postponed until 3:30 p. m., August 31.

Indiana Standard Reduces Gasoline

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—Standard Oil Company of Indiana has reduced service station and tank wagon price of first and second grades of gasoline 1 cent a gallon and third-grade gasoline, ½-cent a gallon.

WALL STREET HEARS

That Corn Products business has picked up about 10 per cent over the June and July levels.

That retail automobile sales have shown a little more life in the past 10 days.

That the railroads will not act upon the plan to seek a further reduction in wages until later in the year.

1,200 to Get Jobs On W. Va. Roads

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 29.—(AP.)—Employment for between 1,200 and 1,500 men will be provided on construction of 57.097 miles of highway for which bids were asked Saturday by the State Road Commission. The bids will be opened on September 13. Scattered throughout the state the projects, to be known as emergency construction highway projects, will entail expenditure of approximately $1,500,000, all federal funds.

Canada's Japanese Trade Balance Up

OTTAWA, Aug. 29.—(AP.)—Canada has increased her favorable trade balance with Japan by more than $5,000,000 during the six months ended June 30.

Exports to Japan in that period amounted to 25,226,000 yen, compared with 17,166,257 yen during the same period in 1931. (At par a yen is slightly under 50 cents).

Japanese exports to Canada during the first six months of 1932 amounted to 4,344,306 yen, compared with 7,395,380 yen in the first half of 1931.

METAL PRICES STRONGER

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Copper was steadier in sympathy with a better demand during the middle of the week at advancing prices, stimulated by prospects for a preferential duty on copper into the United Kingdom following the Ottawa conference. Moderate quantities of electrolytic which had been offered in the domestic market at 5⅜ cents delivered in the Connecticut Valley were withdrawn and producers were asking 5½ cents for delivery during the remainder of the year. Home consumers, however, bought only moderately.

Tin advanced sharply toward the close of the week. The advance accompanied gains at London and in the Far East.

Successive advances in lead during the past two weeks have carried prices up $8 per ton as all major consuming lines entered the market to fill nearby and forward requirements extending into October. Producers continued to limit sales to daily allotments.

Zinc remained quiet but steady.

COAL OUTPUT HIGHER AGAIN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Bituminous coal production for the second consecutive week increased the week ended August 20.

The Bureau of Mines today estimated national output for the week at 4,950,000 tons, as compared with 4,675,000 tons the previous week and 4,465,000 tons the week ended August 6.

Pennsylvania shared in the increase for the week ended August 13, accounting for 1,291,000 tons of the total as compared with 1,196,000 tons the previous week.

West Virginia, however, continued to lead the Keystone State, turning out 1,494,000 tons of the national total. The northern fields accounted for 338,000 tons of that amount.

TRUCK SALES PICKING UP

The pickup of sales of used trucks during the August clean-up campaign at the International Harvester Company, 5200 Penn avenue, indicates a general improvement in business, according to Harold W. Moody, Pittsburgh district manager. He said:

"More than one-third of our entire inventory of used trucks has been sold during the past three weeks. The sales program is gathering momentum daily. This would indicate that contractors, builders, haulers, delivery companies and businessmen in general are anticipating increased activity this fall. And they are preparing for it early."

Wholesale and Jobbing Trade Conditions

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—(AP.)—Tabloid review of wholesale and retail business conditions and the state of crops as reported to Bradstreet's this week from the following centers, on the basis of comparisons with conditions in the same areas in the corresponding week last year:

Cleveland—Steel consumers buying for immediate needs; food prices decline; stock exchange shows another week of heavy trading.

RAIN PREVENTS BUC GAME

SPORT COMMENT

FRENCH'S FINE WORK BUC LIFE SAVER

THAT THE PIRATES had kept so close at the heels of the Dodgers as to be in a position to slip right into second place when the Brooklyn club lost two games to the Cardinals yesterday was due largely to the excellent pitching of Larry French during the last two weeks. French has been a lifesaver to the Bucs at a stage when the slab staff was crippled and they were on the verge of falling into the second division. Of the seven lean victories scored by the local club in its last 29 games, the hard-working left-hander accounted for four. Within 12 days, Larry, toiling out of turn after short rest periods, won four games and finished another that went against him in an extra inning. There is no hurler in the majors pitching better ball than French right now, or doing more for his club.

Larry French

In losing six of their last seven games, the Dodgers, like the Pirates, have demonstrated that slumps often follow sensational winning streaks. The only hope for any other flag contender is that something of the same sort may yet happen to the Cubs. But you'll look in vain for any sign of it at present. The Bruins have won 20 out of 25 games under Charley Grimm and have equaled the Yankees' major league record for the season by taking 10 in a row. Unless they go all to pieces, beating them out will have to be postponed until some later season. If they merely break even in 30 remaining games, Pittsburgh will have to win 23 out of 28 and Brooklyn 22 out of 25 to finish on top.

THE PIRATE MANAGEMENT is confident it has made a valuable addition to the pitching staff in the purchase of Harold Smith from Kansas City. It is learned that three other major league clubs were after the pitcher, so highly was he touted by the various scouts.

The cash sum that Pittsburgh had to give up in addition to two players to be delivered later was a tidy one, but Scout Bill Hinchman believes the new flinger will make the investment prove profitable.

THE COMBING OF the minor leagues by Pirate scouts in quest of new material for the local pitching department will not see any let-down by reason of the acquisition of Smith.

It is in the hurling branch more than anywhere else that the Buccaneers will require bolstering for next year, and the efforts of the club's agents are being directed toward finding timber of that kind.

IF THE CUBS win the pennant in the National League, Manager Grimm will not have to go into the world series with a flock of players likely to be dazzled by the glamor of the classic. Eleven of the Bruins have seen service in previous world series, and one of them, Mark Koenig, will gain the distinction of having played for both the National and American Leagues in the big stakes. It will be the fourth world series for Burleigh Grimes if he gets into it, the third for Hazen Cuyler, who was not used by the Pirates in 1927, and the second for Grimm, Woody English, Riggs Stephenson, Gabby Hartnett, Guy Bush, Pat Malone, Charley Root and Zack Taylor.

Frank Crosetti

INASMUCH as a high-grade shortstop, remaining steadily on the job, is supposed to be essential to the pennant success of any ball club, Joe McCarthy's flag drive with the Yankees, in spite of a complicated situation in the shortfield all season, makes him deserving of extra credit.

It can't be said that McCarthy has practically won the pennant without a shortstop, as he has three of them. But he has done it without a shortfielder that could be called permanent or regular. Twice he has lifted Frank Crosetti, twice he has benched Lyn Lary, and he has even experimented with Eddie Farrell.

THE LATEST SHIFT that took Crosetti out of the lineup again and brought back Lary after the latter had ridden the bench since early in July probably was made with the world series in view.

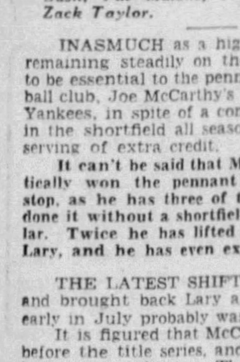
It is figured that McCarthy wants to get the shortstop job settled before the title series, and that if Lary does not hold up Farrell will be given a chance. The Yankee manager evidently feared that Crosetti might bog down at a critical hour. He says he did not lift Crosetti on account of his batting slump so much as for the reason that Frank was worrying and losing weight.

THOUGH THE AMATEUR tennis market sank to such a new low during the recent women's national championship that only $5,000 came in at the gate against an overhead of $7,000, U. S. L. T. A. officials anticipate a comfortable profit in the men's singles championship, starting Saturday at Forest Hills. The absence of Mrs. Helen Wills Moody is believed to have had much to do with the lean intake at the women's affair, and with such drawing cards as Henri Cochet and topliners from Great Britain, Italy and Japan, the men's tournament is expected to pack them in daily in such a way that the total receipts may approximate $75,000. The only sellout on record was registered in 1927, when 14,000 saw Rene Lacoste defeat Bill Tilden.

SO SURE DOES Benny Leonard feel of beating Jimmy McLarnin on October 3 that he is already booking bouts for the fall and winter throughout the West. He plans to box from 12 to 15 times at the smaller clubs and against opponents not likely to do him any harm.

Benny will box at least twice and possibly three times before the McLarnin match. He is to meet Phil Rafferty at Long Beach Stadium Friday night and Buster Brown at the same place a week later. McLarnin wanted 12 rounds set as the limit for the bout on October 3, but Leonard insisted on 10 rounds and won his point. The only weight specification is that each principal scale under 155 pounds.

THE NEW YORK Boxing Commission has a rule prohibiting champions from meeting opponents in heavier classes, but will let down the bars, it is reported, in response to Maxey Rosenbloom's declaration that unless the board found a light-heavyweight opponent for him in a title match he would give up the crown and fight among the heavyweights.



Kaye Don

Both Rosenbloom and Tony Canzoneri, it is said, will be given permission for over-the-weight matches. Rosenbloom has no opponent in sight, but Canzoneri will take his match at the Queensboro Stadium on September 13 against Johnny Jadich, Sammy Fuller, Frankie Petrolle or Lew Kirsch. Tony also is considering a meeting with Billy Townsend in Toronto.

ONE ADDITIONAL ITEM that Gar Wood will have to take into account in this year's international speedboat races for the Harmsworth Trophy, starting Saturday at Detroit, is the improvement in Kaye Don as a boat driver. Wood once laughed at "this automobile driver who has taken to steering boats." That was in the days when the Englishman had little more than daring. But he is said to have improved a great deal since 1931. In a trial run the other day he swept past the press boat with only 20 feet to spare, which is close figuring at 100 miles an hour. A year ago Don would not have thought of manipulating his boat into such tight quarters. So he is clearly much better qualified to jockey with the canny Wood than he was when they first met for the big trophy. The Englishman deserves a lot of credit. Whereas Wood has the veteran mechanician, Orlin Johnson, to do all the motor manipulation in Miss America X, Don is the whole works in his boat. He steers and works the throttles.

STRONG FIELD ENTERED IN EVENT

By TOM BIRKS

The annual Western Pennsylvania Caddie tournament got under way at the Alcoma County Club this morning. One of the largest fields ever to enter the competition started out in quest of the individual and team prizes.

From bright and early morn until late this afternoon, the bag toters will battle for honors. After the tourney, the boys will be banqueted. This is the only event on the local calendar for today.

Tomorrow, the first-half of the Schenley Park-County Parks team championships will be played at the Oakland course. South Park will be the scene of the conclusion of the tourney on Thursday.

The qualifying round of the Professional golfers championship will be played over the Keller course at St. Paul tomorrow. Local fans will be interested in the doings of Vincent Eldred, Pennsylvania state champion; Charlie Manning, of the Shannopin Country Club, and Rader Jewett, of the Cedar Rocks Club, Wheeling.

These were the local qualifiers. Eldred is being given a big chance to make a showing on his season's record. He has ben playing wonderful golf, and it has been many years since a local man finished in the money in the big national events.

W. C. Farquhar successfully defended his Pittsburgh Field Club title yesterday, defeating W. E. Donahoe, 3 to 1, in the 36-hole final round. The winner was 2 up at the turn. Farquhar won the title last year defeating James Hammond in the final round, 1 up.

Fred Brand, Jr., won the Shannopin Country Club championship yesterday. He defeated F. L. Stout, Jr., in the final round of 36 holes, 6 and 4.

The exhibition match between Sam Parks, Jr., pro of the Summit Club, and Frank Nash, of Highland, against Ted Luther, pro of Valley Heights, and Maurice LeBosquet, of Highland, ended all even over the Uniontown course yesterday.

Mrs. Sarah Fownes Wadsworth, who recently retained her West Penn women's golf championship, may be unable to compete in the state championship at Oakmont next month as a result of an injury to her wrist suffered last Friday at Fox Chapel. The injury was sustained while she was play-

TOMORROW: THE COSTLIEST VASE IN HISTORY.

DOUBLEHEADER WITH BRAVES TOMORROW

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Rain today prevented the second battle of the four-game series between the Pittsburgh Pirates and Boston Braves at Forbes Field.

The postponement will be played off tomorrow afternoon as part of a doubleheader. The dual bill will mark the final boys' day of the season at Forbes Field. The first game will start at 1:45.

The world champion Cardinals have graced the second division of the National League through most of the season, but they threaten now to fight their way to second place. The Redbirds today were in a virtual deadlock with the Phillies for fourth place and they are but 3½ games below the runnerup Pirates.

The deal which sent clever Chick Hafey from the roost of the Redbirds has turned out to be one of the most stupid moves any owners have made in recent years.

When the Cardinals were in Pittsburgh early in the season they could see the handwriting on the wall. The psychological effect of losing Hafey was upon the players then in a heavy manner. Several of the Redbirds informed me at that time that Hafey was missed and would be missed inasmuch as he was the champion batter of the league, a great fielder in every respect, a good baserunner, a hustler and a well-behaved boy.

COSTLY DEAL

Yet with all these great essentials in his makeup, Hafey was passed along to the last-place Reds largely as a matter of punishment for holding out. Possibly the same sickness that overtook Chick in his new position would have seized him in St. Louis, but he could have played in at least half of the Cardinals' contests and his bat and fielding ability in 75 games might have turned many battles for the Cardinals.

Hafey, despite his stubborn sickness, has played in more than 60 games for Dan Howley. He is the fourth best batter in the league this year with a mark of .353, despite his illness.

CHICK WINS GAMES

When the various folks were naming the probable winner of the National League pennant last spring this writer was among those who selected the Cardinals, but the dive into the future was taken before the Cardinals put over their awful deal involving Hafey. I picked the Cubs to finish second at the same time, largely on account of the Chicago pitching staff.

The Hafey deal was hardly a fair shake for Gabby Street. The Redbirds have had all kinds of trouble in left field this year. Not only has Hafey's bat been missed, there has been nobody to throw out daring runners at the plate. Many of the swift boys think twice before they try to score from second on a single to Hafey's territory, and in a tight ball game an advantage of this kind often proves to be the winning factor.

Hafey was to the Cardinals what Cuyler is to the Cubs or Ott to the Giants.

William E. Benswanger, president of the Pirates, left this afternoon for Manchester, N. H., where he will attend the American Legion baseball tournament scheduled there this week.

CHILLYSAUCE

Among his souvenirs and treasures, Bill Benswanger delights in some new tokens which afford him great comfort. The kindly president of the Pirates has received hundreds of letters from boys of 12 or under that age who have written the Pirate prexy to thank him for many a treat this summer.

A sample, written with lead pencil, yet in a neat hand on modest paper:

"Dear Mr. Benswanger—There is no fun where I live. I want to thank you for letting me go to the ball games."

Benswanger says he was "nutty" about baseball when he was 10 or 12 so he fully appreciates the thrill a youngster gets when admitted to the park free. More than incidentally, the Pittsburgh president says the children's and ladies' days have been a big success and they will be continued next year. Today, by the way, is the last children's day of the year.

Johnny Schulte, big catcher who recently joined the Boston Braves, is glad to be back in the National League. Johnny's last trick was with the St. Louis Browns. Previously, Schulte caught for Los Angeles where he was sold by the Chicago Cubs.

Discussing the two major circuits, Schulte today said:

"The American League is a dandy circuit and it has some great teams in the Yanks, Athletics and one or two others, but the league as a whole is not balanced as well as this is. Maybe I am partial to the National League, but I like the spirit of the play over here. Baseball means more in the National. The players appear to hustle more to win all through the league. When a club loses in this league you hear a lot of moaning and grumbling, but in the American a defeat seems to be taken as a matter of course. Perhaps that is as it should be when one has done his best, but somehow I like the flavor of the National."

Little Jimmy McKechnie, aged 8, is in uniform with the Braves each day. The polite little son of the Boston pilot has been shown many tricks of the game by Walter Maranville, Wes Schulmerich and others. In a certain game, Skipper McKechnie saw the need of a pinch-hitter. A righthander was working against the Braves and Bill hailed the play to send in Fred Leach.

"Leach batting for Schulmerich," was McKechnie's order.

"I don't think much of that move!" shouted little Jim.

OFFICIALS TO MEET

RACE PILOTS KILLED

WOODBRIDGE, N. J., Aug. 29.—(AP.)—A collision in the second five-mile qualifying heat of the season's first racing program at the Woodbridge Speedway cost Frankie Farmer, nationally-known automobile racer, and Bill Neapolitan, of Philadelphia, their lives yesterday.

The accident occurred as Farmer tried to pass Neapolitan on a bank. Neapolitan's car turned over and his chest was crushed. Farmer suffered a compound fracture of the skull. They were taken to Perth Amboy Hospital and pronounced dead.

The feature event was won by Bryan Sauspaugh, of Philadelphia, who covered the 25 miles in 26 minutes 4 seconds.

BERRY WINS AT SHARON

SHARON, Pa., Aug. 29.—Jerry Berry, Akron driver, won the 50-mile speed car dirt auto race here yesterday. Right behind him was Deb Snyder, of Kent, O., and Alfred Schneider, of Trafford, placed third. The winning time was 49 minutes and seven seconds.

SETS WORLD MARK

WINCHESTER, Ind., Aug. 29.—(AP.)—Bob Carey, of Anderson, Ind., established a new world record of :22.58 in driving his motor racer one-half mile over the dirt speedway here yesterday.

The former mark, 22.90 was established on the same track by Maurie Rose, of Dayton, O., July 23, 1931.

LEEPER, DRIVER, KILLED

TERRA HAUTE, Ind., Aug. 29.—(INS.)—Edward Leeper, 25-year-old automobile racer, of Indianapolis, lay dead today, victim of a crash at the Jungle Park race track, near here. He was warming up his car for the 50-mile feature race of yesterday's program, when the machine hurtled off the track, killing him instantly.

RAIN PREVENTS RACES

WASHINGTON, Pa., Aug. 29.—Rain prevented the staging of the automobile races scheduled at Arden Downs yesterday. The meet will be staged next Sunday.

SPORT VIGNETTES

They can go ahead with the football season now that the Cubs and Yankees are virtually "in" as winners of the major league pennants . . . And don't think they aren't going ahead with the autumnal pastime, training work being scheduled to get under way this week and the first game of the season being booked for Forbes Field two weeks from next Friday night, when Duquesne University pries off its lid with a battle against Westminster College, and follows with night tilts against West Virginia and Grove City, both tough foes, to prepare itself for its first meeting with Pitt, at the Stadium, October 8. . . . Pitt opens against Ohio Northern, September 24, and plays West Virginia the following week before taking on the Dukes. . . . Carnegie Tech opens with a "natural" against Geneva College, coached by its favorite son, Howard Harpster, all-America quarterback of the Tartans four years ago, the battle being carded for the Stadium, October 1, when Pitt will be playing West Virginia at Morgantown.

Geneva returns here to play the Dukes at the Stadium on Thanksgiving Day. . . . W. & J. meets Tech here, October 15, and its old rival, West Virginia, at Wheeling, November 26. . . . The Pitt-Tech battle is slated for the Stadium, November 19. . . . The Tartans play Notre Dame at South Bend, October 22, and Pitt is scheduled with the Irish at home the following Saturday.

Maybe you'd like some more football chatter? . . . Well, here it is. . . . Harvey Harman, former Pitt star, now coaching at Pennsylvania, will take on Pitt there on November 5, and Ohio State at Columbus the following Saturday. . . . Ohio State plays Pitt here, October 22. . . . This year's battle will be the first Pitt-Penn game since 1925, Penn having decided to cut the tough Panthers off its list because of too many beatings. . . . Carnegie Tech and Geneva, by the way, have not met since 1922, when the Tartans began to step out and meet more rugged opposition. . . . The rescheduling of Duquesne and Washington & Jefferson here, November 5, recalls the fact that the latter institution was the first of the more important colleges around here to give the Dukes a tumble when they began their climb, and the Bluffites won a close game and have been up there ever since.

Pitt's game with Army, October 15, has been shifted from the Yankee Stadium, New York, to West Point. . . . Aside from this and the West Virginia game at Morgantown and the Penn game at Philadelphia, the Panthers' only game away from home will be with Nebraska, at Lincoln, November 12. . . . The Pitt season will be carried over Thanksgiving Day to the following Saturday, when Pop Warner's Stanford University team, of California, will cavort at the Stadium. . . . Tech runs its season into December 3, for a closing tilt with Georgetown at Washington, D. C.

There will be a noticeable reduction in football ticket prices everywhere this fall, in keeping with the times. . . . There will be only two $4 tops at the Stadium, for the Pitt-Notre Dame and Pitt-Ohio State melees . . . Tops for the other features will be up to $3 . . . Harvard, Yale and Princeton have cut their tops from $5 to $4.

West Virginia and Davis & Elkins resume football relations this year following the patching up of a split since the end of the 1929 season . . . Geneva gets a belt at Davis & Elkins at home in its opener a week before taking on Tech here . . . The Covenanters' feature home game is with Boston University, October 22 . . . Allegheny College has dropped virtually all of its old natural rivals, in keeping with its new policy of avoiding competition with teams that aid their athletes through scholarships or in other ways . . . It plays Edinboro, Springfield, Oberlin, Alfred and Bethany . . . Gone are the meetings with Grove City, Thiel, Westminster, Geneva and Waynesburg, logical rivals . . . St. Francis College is out of the football picture this fall as a result of a decision to drop all athletics for one year as an experiment, but St. Vincent Col-

YANKEES NEED 18 VICTORIES TO CLINCH PENNANT

CUBS CAN COP FLAG WITH 22 WINS

Associated Press.

Those of you interested in mathematical possibilities, the New York Yankees can clinch the American League pennant with 18 more victories, while the Chicago Cubs need 22 wins to assure themselves of the National League flag.

Thus the Yankees, by winning 18 of their remaining games, can clinch the pennant regardless of what Philadelphia accomplishes. Washington is in an even more dangerous position, for the Senators automatically will be eliminated as soon as the Yankees win 13 games.

In the National League, Pittsburgh could win all of its remaining games and still finish no better than second if the Cubs can take 22 decisions. Brooklyn will be out as soon as the Cubs win 20 games. It might be remembered, too, that each time their closest rivals are beaten the Cubs and Yankees will need one fewer victory to clinch.

The Cubs continued their mad dash through the older circuit yesterday, nosing out the New York Giants, 5-4, for their tenth successive triumph. Kiki Cuyler drove in four runs with a single, home run and long fly, the latter blow knocking home the winning marker in the ninth. Brooklyn's hopes took a sharp drop as the Dodgers lost two decisions to the St. Louis Cardinals, 4-1 and 6-4. Dizzy Dean won his third game in five days in the nightcap, although he was relieved by Sylvester Johnson in the ninth. Cincinnati and Philadelphia split two well-pitched games, the opener going to the Phillies, 2-1, and the second struggle to the Reds, 3-2.

The Yankees maintained their 10½-game lead in the American circuit by splitting two games with the Chicago Whitesox. The Sox won the first game, 5-2, as Ted Lyons held the Yankees to five hits, but dropped the second, 11-5, when New York collected 15 hits. Babe Ruth hit a homer in each game to bring his season's total to 39.

Cleveland scored seven runs in the first inning to win the first game from the Boston Redsox, 10-1, but dropped the second, 4-3, when Benny Tate clouted a homer in the eleventh inning. Detroit pounded Weaver, Brown and Coffman for 21 hits and won a 15-7 victory over Washington.

Jay Cohn Wins Michigan Tourney

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Aug. 29.—(AP.)—Jay Cohn, Santa Monica, Cal., made a sweep of the men's singles competition today by defeating Ed Lejeck, Chicago, 6-1, 6-2, 7-5, to win the title in the Michigan open tennis championships. He won the junior title yesterday.

Mrs. Dorothy Hack, Chicago, won the women's singles title by defeating Catherine Wolf, Elkhart, Ind., 6-3, 7-5. Then she paired with Jack Harris, also of Chicago, to defeat the Chicago team of Louise Hofmeister and Leo Lejeck, 6-0, 6-1, to win the mixed doubles championship.

"Are We Blue?" -:- -:- -:- Not These Cubs

There's plenty of harmony in the Cubs' locker room at Wrigley Field in Chicago these days since they are sweeping their way pennantward. The harmony of this informal chorus may not be so good, but it's plenty loud, more so since the Bruins swept the three-game series with the Brooklyn Dodgers, their nearest rivals. This is an International News Photograph Service picture.

SAMPLE HOLDS INTEREST

By JESS CARVER

The gridiron-wise will watch with interest the doings of Carnegie Tech's William DeCoursey (Hooks) Sample, co-captain, guard, Beta Theta Pi and gentleman, during the onrushing intercollegiate football campaign. Mister Sample, a big fella, ought to be for a big year.

Carnegie hasn't had a lineman of the promise and class of Sample since the days of Bull Yoder, and no disrespect is meant for Messers Dreshar, Lovewell, Fletcher and Ducanis, either. Sample is big, fast and likes it. He can take it with the best of 'em.

There isn't a more willing fellow on the squad than Hooks. Last fall, when the backfield situation looked very, very gloomy—very gloomy indeed—Coaches Steffen and Waddell went into a huddle and decided to try Hooks at fullback. What a shellacking he took! He tried his best, but Hooks never was cut out to play fullback. No. He's a lineman... pure and simple. He's pure enough and no one ever can accuse him of being simple.

Anyway, after the first scrimmage, during which poor Hooks banged away at the fullback's job, he left the battle hardly able to move. He was creaking in every joint. He went to his tent—it was during the pre-school practice sessions in the Tartan Bowl—and flopping on his cot, he gasped:

Sample and George Kavel, the hard-hitting halfback, will divide the honor of captaining Tech's varsity eleven this fall. Kavel has been in town all summer, working around the campus as a day laborer, getting himself hardened. Hooks has been at his home in Ohio—probably lifeguarding.

The Tipoff

Frank Canioni, assistant coach at Charleroi High School, former Grove City star and all-district guard in 1929 and as good a lineman as played football that year, too, spent the week-end in town. Canioni is going to play some pro ball this fall—and is expected to sign with the Rooneys. He turned down a contract to play with the New York Giants in the National Professional League—where they wanted him to pair off with his former teammate, Sofish.

Canioni, who admits he doesn't get to town often, had a run-in with a dial telephone which was a pip. He kept dialing and dialing a number, and always seemed to get the busy signal. Finally, yours truly discovered he'd forgotten to lift the receiver.

Frank tells a good one on Mose Lantz, head coach at Scottdale and former Grove City center star. Lentz sports some phoby teeth, and when he was in school, it was his practice to take 'em out before football practice each day and hide them in his shoes.

Lantz and Marcus Rankin, the football and basketball star, were roommates, and one day, Rankin quit practice ahead of Mose and got into the dressing room first. He swiped Mose's teeth. Mose, of course, missed them, and made Rankin aid him in searching every place as they left the dressing room. All the while, Rankin had the tusks in his pocket.

That night, at dinner, when Lantz came to the table, he found the missing teeth peeping coyly at him from his soup dish.

Schmeling to Fly To Training Camp

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—(INS.)—Max Schmeling, former heavyweight boxing champion, will take off today in a seaplane for his camp at Speculator, N. Y., where he is to start training for his bout here next month against Mickey Walker, former middleweight champion.

Tony Polozzolo, trainer for Jack Sharkey, told Walker he stood a better chance of beating Schmeling than Sharkey did when the Bostonian dethroned Max.

O'LOUGHLIN NET VICTOR

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN
Staff Correspondent.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Aug. 29.—Billy O'Loughlin, slim Pitt-P. A. A. star, blasted a brilliant path to the men's singles honors of the annual Southern Pennsylvania tennis championships at the Westmont Tennis Club here yesterday. Frank Broida, Howard southpaw and Pittsburgh parks' premier, fell victim to the flashing forehand of the Winged Head contender in straight, but torrid, sets, 6-3, 6-3, 6-3.

O'Loughlin, stepping fast, made splendid use of his mighty forehand weapon to pummel Broida's backhand shots and frequently to drive the sideline to catch the Crimson luminary on the wrong foot. Broida, unwontedly erratic in the face of the severe hammering, proved unable to force a path to the net, where his sizzling volleys and murderous overhead render him most dangerous. When he did come in O'Loughlin passed him quite often or hustled him into errors.

SULLIVAN, BILLY WIN

O'Loughlin, with his P. A. A. partner, Paul Sullivan, likewise landed the doubles laurels, defeating Broida and Eddie Alcorn, Pitt court leader, 7-5, 7-5, 6-4, after a bitter struggle that saw the losers pull up to duce in all three sessions, only to drop service and blow the decision in every case.

O'Loughlin and Sullivan lobbed effectively to turn back the determined forecourt attack of Broida and Alcorn in the doubles title frame. Alcorn's overhead cracked badly, while Broida, fatigued from an earlier dual tilt and the singles combat, was unable to carry the barrier burden. O'Loughlin drove well at vital moments in breaking down the hostile service and sustaining his own. Broida and Alcorn downed the home club satellites, Rufus Cooper and Dave Devlin, in a morning doubles tussle, 6-4, 6-2, 7-9, 6-4, to enter the final.

MISS STRAUB VICTOR

Rose Straub, Johnstown ace, downed Miriam Sullivan, another Winged Head performer, in the women's singles windup, 6-1, 6-1, and thereby garnered permanent possession of the Lorain Steel trophy, which she has captured for the past three years.

Miss Straub's steady, cleverly devised back court game kept Miss Sullivan on the run in the women's terminal fray. The Pittsburgher played nicely, but lacked decisiveness when points would have meant games. The Johnstowner occasionally invaded the net area to excellent effect and lobbed perfectly to break up her rival's attempts in this direction.

Local Golfer Wins Medal, Withdraws

MEADVILLE, Pa., Aug. 29.—(AP.)—Medalist in the third annual Crawford County amateur golf tournament, J. Calhoun, of Pittsburgh, had withdrawn from further competition today. He carded a 38-37—75 to win first honors yesterday.

Walter S. Critchlow, of Titusville, defending champion, and Bob King, of Meadville, shot 77s to tie for second place, while George Calhoun, of Pittsburgh, was fourth with 78. The latter also withdrew. The Calhouns said they would be unable to compete through the week.

CANADIANS WIN

SEASIDE PARK, N. J., Aug. 29.—(AP.)—The Royal St. Lawrence Yacht Club, of Montreal, took to Canada yesterday the International Sloop Series trophy, after winning the final day's sailing against the Barnegat Bay Racing Association. The Canadians scored 15 points to 35 for the United States, despite two victories today by Charles Dunbar, Yale University sophomore.

DAKE BEATS ALEKHINE

PASADENA, Cal., Aug. 29.—(AP.)—Arthur W. Dake, of Portland, Ore., defeated Dr. Alexander Alekhine yesterday in the semi-final round of the international chess masters' tournament, moving into third place. Dr. Alekhine still is 1½ points ahead of the field.

CUP GOLFERS TUNE UP

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 29.—(AP.)—Francis Ouimet, captain of the United States Walker Cup golf team, and National Amateur champion, expected to get out to the country club today for a short visit and perhaps a round of golf.

Ouimet was stricken with a severe cold during his match with Gene Sarazen last week, and Thursday was ordered to bed. His recovery, however, has been rapid.

The United States team appeared in something of a bunch yesterday. Billy Howell, the sensational Virginian; George Voigt and Maurice McCarthy, the New York members of the team, and George T. Dunlap, Jr., played a practice foursome, while Charley Seaver and Don Moe, the Coast giants, started out on a twosome.

Jack Westland, of Chicago, arrived too late to play yesterday; Jesse Sweetser's throat infection has cleared up and he's expected today, and Harrison Johnston, amateur champion in 1929, and Gus Moreland were on their way here.

NO MORE ADDITIONS

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—(AP.)—No more additions are planned to the United States Walker Cup team, which meets the British squad at Brookline, Thursday and Friday, it was indicated today by United States Golf Association officials.

The selection Saturday of Gus Moreland, of Dallas, newly-crowned western amateur king, makes 11 men from whom Capt. Francis Ouimet can pick his team of eight to play against the British.

When Moreland was ordered to report at Brookline it appeared Ouimet himself, and perhaps Jess Sweetser, would not be able to play. Ouimet, however, is reported recovering rapidly from a cold and a throat infection which might have kept Sweetser out is responding to treatment.

The boxing show scheduled at Hickey Park, Millvale, tonight, featuring Ted Yarosz and Jimmy Belmont in a third meeting, was postponed this afternoon when a heavy downpour settled over the arena shortly before time for the boxers to weigh. The show will go on tomorrow night, weather permitting.

A. A. U. officials were hopeful they would be able to go through with their 10-bout show at Greenlee Field tonight with the Italian Olympic boxing team meeting a team of local stars, beginning at 8:30 o'clock, under the auspices of the Amerita Club.

An amateur show also was scheduled in New Kensington, postponed from last Friday night, and another one is slated at the Al Sands A. C. arena, Uniontown.

Announcement was made today that Charley Baxter, local lightweight, and Johnny Datto, Cleveland Filipino, have been matched to box the main bout at Hickey Park next Monday night. No bouts have been announce for Greenlee Field Thursday night.

Michelson Victor In Marathon Run

SALEM, N. H., Aug. 29.—(AP.)—Albert Michelson, running under the colors of the New York A. C., a member of the American Olympic team, won the Boston Olympic Club's marathon run on the Rockingham Park mile track here yesterday. His time was 2 hours 50 minutes and 19 seconds.

John Semple, of Lynn, Mass., was second, just three-quarters of a mile behind, and Clarence DeMar, seven times winner of the Boston marathon, was third. Juan Zabala, of the Argentine, the Olympic marathon champion, was running with intention of breaking all records from eight miles up to 12, led the field for a dozen laps, but dropped out. His time for eight miles was 45 minutes 3-5 seconds, almost five minutes slower than the world mark.

Chisox Exercise Player Options

WATERLOO, Ia., Aug. 29.—(AP.)—Options have been exercised by the Chicago White Sox on three players of the Waterloo Mississippi Valley Leage club. They are Leslie Tietje, pitcher; Fabian (Ed) Gaffke, outfielder, and Joe Chamberlain, shortstop.

Chamberlain disappeared while Waterloo was playing at Rock Island, Ill., last Tuesday and has not been located by police of Iowa, Illinois and Nebraska. In a letter he said he "guessed" he was suffering from nerves.

Harry Milton Keeps Schenley Park Title

SARAZEN TIES PAR

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 29.—(INS.)—Gene Sarazen, United States and British open golf champion, today had another laurel adorning his brow. In an exhibition best-ball foursome, Sarazen shot a 72, equaling par on the Westwood Hills course here yesterday. He was paired with Lee Herron against Pat Sawyer and Lester Rolstead. Both teams were all square at the end of the contest.

Bill Amos, W. & J. coach for three years, shifts over to Grove City College, succeeding Charley Berry, the White Sox catcher, resigned, and Hank Day, successful mentor at Washington High School, takes over the reins at Wash-Jeff... Waldo F. Tippin, former Geneva star, is the new coach at Allegheny, succeeding H. W. Crum... Gene Edwards, former Notre Dame back, takes the place of Clem Crowe as head coach at St. Vincent, after having served as Crowe's understudy for three seasons.

The Army plays Yale the Saturday after it meets Pitt... Remembering the walloping Pitt gave the Cadets here last year, for which team do you think the latter will point, the Panthers or the Elis?... Next year, Pitt begins a two-year contract with the Navy, playing the first game here... Notre Dame winds up its season of nine games by meeting Navy at Cleveland and the Army in New York on successive Saturdays and then jumping to Los Angeles to play Southern California. Two weeks elapse between the last two games.

Ray Hudson, of New Kensington, an end, will captain the Georgetown team this fall... Fred Billings, Jr., of Pittsburgh, is captain at Princeton and Joe LaMark, of Coraopolis, is the leader of New York University... Paul Reider will captain Pitt and Paul Abele Duquesne University, while Hooks Sample and George Kavel will share the honor at Tech... With the exception of Sample, who hails from Middletown, O., all are Pennsylvanians... Kavel's home is in Irwin, Abele comes from Johnstown and Reider calls New Castle his home postoffice.

Two of the changes voted by the Rules Committee last February already have been rubbed out... One of the changes revokes the punt as an alternate form of kickoff and the other socks a team a penalty of only 15 yards for illegal use of hands on defense... The latter change at first called for ejection of the offending player from the game and penalizing of his team half the distance to its goal line... It kicked up such a stir among the coaches that it had to be modified... The changes that stand abolish the flying tackle and flying block; the flying wedge for the return of the kickoff by compelling at least five players of the receiving team to remain within their 45-yard line until the ball is kicked and the rabbit punch by defensive linemen. They also allow return of players each period instead of each half, banish piling on and govern equipment to prevent injuries and declare the ball dead when any part of the runner other than his hands and feet touches the ground... Just paste these new rules in your chapeau and you'll know what the game's all about.

Most of the changes were due to the wholesale deaths and injuries of last season, one of the most disastrous in the history of the sport... Forty-nine deaths were recorded and thousands of serious injuries listed, including 48 cases of brain concussion, and something had to be done to save the sport from itself.—HARRY KECK.

WALTER HAGEN TIES COURSE RECORD

ST. PAUL, Aug. 29.—(AP.)—Walter Hagen, five times P. G. A. champion, has served notice that he is "on" his game and will be a major threat in the National Professional Golfers Association tournament opening at Keller course here tomorrow.

"The Haig" reported yesterday, went to the Interlachen Club at Minneapolis and there shot a brilliant 67, to tie the unofficial course record and shatter par of 73 by six strokes. Hagen went out in 32 and came back in 35. His 67 total was one better than the 68 registered by Bobby Jones during the 1930 national open at Interlachen.

Tom Creavy, of Albany, N. Y., the defending champion, turned in a 77 yesterday. Creavy is exempt from the 36 holes of qualifying play starting tomorrow and will have his first competition on Wednesday when match play starts.

Among those who braved the rain and chill winds yesterday to make a round or two were Johnny Farrell, former national open champion; Horton Smith, winner of the St. Paul $10,000 open last year; Al Watrous, Ted Turner, August Nordone, Ed Dudley, Olin and Mortie Dutra.

GRID LEAGUE ORGANIZED

Assurance that the James P. Rooneys, twice conference champions, will be back in the Western Pennsylvania Independent Football Conference was given at the conference meeting yesterday by Art Rooney, manager and owner of the club. The Rooneys will play their home games this season at Greenlee Field. West View also will be back in the fold, and Manager Paul Muzzio proposes to sign several former college stars for his team. A percentage of the gate receipts will be turned over to the unemployed of West View.

Manager Johnny Legidice and Wop Politz will direct the Papales, the East Liberty entry in the conference. Former Linwood gridders will play for the Papales, who also will play their home games at Greenlee Field.

Dan Burns and his New Kensington aggregation will make a new effort to win conference laurels, and a Duquesne-Homestead eleven will be a new entry. The McKeesport Olympics were not represented at the meeting, but they are expected to fall into line.

Grid Prices Cut By U. of Chicago

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—(AP.)—Football prospects at the University of Chicago this fall are the best since 1924, but admissions will be the lowest in the Western Conference.

Director A. A. Stagg, Sr., just returned from his motion picture engagement, today announced that Big Ten contests at home with Indiana, Illinois, Purdue and Wisconsin will be on display at $1.50, without tax. Prices for the Monmouth and Knox games, which complete the home schedule, will be $1.

Amos Set to Start Work With Grovers

WASHINGTON, Pa., Aug. 29.—William E. (Bill) Amos, former Washington and Jefferson College coach, will leave here tomorrow to take up his new duties at Grove City College, where he recently signed a one-year contract, succeeding Charley Berry. Amos, critically injured in an automobile crash last March, is fully recovered except for a slight hitch in an arm.

Nick Altrock Baseball's Humorist Says:

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Up around Boston way this will go down as the month of the Big Wind. Anyway, it's the month when the Boston Braves blew plenty.

Nick Altrock

Up to their last western trip, the club had done so elegant Boston fans were dickering to rename Bunker Hill monument for them and there were plans afoot to order George Washington down from his equestrian statue on Boston Common and give Manager Bill McKechnie his place in the bronze saddle.

But I dunno. The Braves went out on this western trip and I guess they got train sick or something. And the team began to play like the Four Marxes had nine extra brothers and they were all named Gummo. So there's no great joy in Hubville now and they're just waiting for the Harvard football season to start.

STOCK MARKET GENERALLY HIGHER

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—(AP.)—The stock market managed to hurdle fresh waves of profit-taking, to push generally higher today, along with the principal commodity markets.

The coppers and utilities were actively bid up in the morning, and under cover of strength in those groups, considerable selling was absorbed elsewhere, but bullishness expanded to embrace much of the list after mid-day. Some of the leading industrial shares, however, found the going rather laborious.

American Smelting moved up nearly 3 points, Greene Cananea nearly as much, Kennecott nearly 2, and Anaconda more than a point, all to new 1932 highs. Westinghouse rose 3 to a new top for the year, General Electric half as much. Columbia Gas, American and Foreign Power, United Corporation, Radio Corporation and Goodyear were among other issues up a point or more to the best prices for 1932. United States Steel, Case, American Telephone, American Can and others managed to recover morning losses of a point or so to show gains of 1 to 1½, but these advances were not well maintained. Rails had a period of heaviness.

Increase of little more than 6,000 cars in weekly freight car loadings, as reported on Saturday for the week ended August 20, was somewhat disappointing, but Wall street analysts said the showing was not necessarily bad.

WHEAT PRICES FLUCTUATE

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—(AP.)—Wheat trade was hesitant at the start today. Opening prices were a shade firmer, but reactionary tendencies in cotton offset strength shown at Liverpool, and the market quickly dropped to around Saturday's closing level. Wheat started steady to ⅝ cent higher, but soon eased. Corn was steady to ⅜ advanced and later held within narrow limits.

Wheat later recovered around Saturday's final quotations. The amount of wheat, afloat was 23,104,000 bushels, less than half the 46,912,000 on seas a year ago.

World export of wheat last week was 7,511,000 bushels, compared with 6,286,000 the week before and 16,352,000 one year ago. The American total, both United States and Canadian, was 4,798,000 bushels, about half a million bushels more than the week previous.

Wholesale Index Advances for Week

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—The wholesale price index of the National Fertilizer Association advanced two fractional points during the week ended August 27 to 62.3 due to the decidedly better price of textiles, including raw cotton. A month ago the index stood at 61.5 and a year ago 67.6.

GIANNINI SEES BUSINESS GAIN ON COAST

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—A. P. Giannini, the man who came back in the trans-America and Bank of America situations, predicts trade improvement in California for the remainder of the year.

Mr. Rukeyser

Mr. Giannini, after winning a dramatic proxy fight, regained control of his companies in February when the spirit of panic was at its height. Pursuing yea-saying methods, he forthwith arrested the decline of deposits of the bank, and inaugurated a successful campaign for augmenting deposits.

SENTIMENT IMPROVES

Mr. Giannini declared, in a statement prepared for this column:

"I am pleased with the turn that affairs have recently taken. The sentiment in our district has without doubt shown a marked improvement. As you may know, we recently completed our 'back to good times' radio program. At the close of this program we noted throughout California a decided improvement in morale and a more hopeful and confident attitude toward the future.

"Since the strengthening of the security markets in the last few weeks, this improved sentiment has become even more evident, and I believe that it has already caused a small but quite definite improvement in business.

"I know that the gain in deposits which we have been experiencing has been accelerated recently, particularly commercial deposits. Barring any adverse reaction in the stock and commodity markets, it is my opinion that business in California will continue to improve during the balance of the year and that we will have a very substantial and gratifying Christmas trade."

PRAISES U. S. STEPS

As to the nature of the "managed recovery," the banker said:

"The steps which the government has taken have on the whole been constructive and deserve the support of every patriotic citizen. One might have hoped that this aggressive attack on the depression would have been launched before so much damage had been done—perhaps, however, events will later show that this delay was an economic rather than a political necessity."

Queried concerning the credit situation, Mr. Giannini revealed:

"Except for excessive taxation, I think that the obstacles to business recovery have been largely removed. Our district, however, in common with all other reserve districts outside of New York and Chicago, has one marked handicap; that is, the 1 per cent higher Federal reserve Bank rate. If it is helpful to business in New York and Chicago to have cheap credit, why is it not equally helpful elsewhere? Our rate of 3½ per cent is 40 per cent higher than the New York rate of 2½ per cent.

HOPE FOR CREDIT GAIN

"This differential seems to me unwarranted, and business conditions in the outlying districts would be improved were it reduced.

"Bank credit for business purposes in the Twelfth Federal Reserve district has been declining steadily for the last seven months. For the last four weeks, however, the trend has flattened out and there has been little significant change. If the hazard of falling prices is removed—as I believe it has been by the recent rise in prices for commodities and stocks, credit will expand slightly in the next few months."

Real Upturn in Steel Seen Stimulant for International Nickel

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—(INS.)—The big question about the market as the new week opens is how long a sizeable reaction will be delayed by the new wave of speculative enthusiasm that sprang up on Friday and Saturday.

So far stocks have been absorbing heavy profit-taking without slackening their stride. Except for the rails, the averages went to new highs on Saturday, which is a bullish signal. Those long of stocks should watch their step, though, and continue to use stop loss orders.

It would not be surprising if the rails were brought forward again after the disappointment of the relatively small gain in loadings last week has worn off.

One wonders when stocks will stop a while and give business a chance of catching up, or at least trying to. The tape and sentiment continue the only guides to follow. Smart buying has been resumed in National Power and Light on the belief it is behind the other utilities in view of its earnings and financial position. Continued rise in cotton and the upturn in the textile industry will help National Power, which has big properties in the south. A real turn in the steel industry will be a stimulant for International Nickel.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Curb stocks continued to advance today, but at a more leisurely pace than on Saturday.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—(A.P.)—Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded in, omitting in sales column of stock list 000 omitted in sales column of bond list:

THOMAS PLAYS RELIANCE

SANDLOT GAMES TODAY

CITY LEAGUE
Reliance at J. L. Thomas.
CRAFTON-INGRAM LEAGUE
Ingram Presbyterians at Crafton Methodists.
GREATER PITTSBURGH LEAGUE
Murs at Springdale.
Verona at Swissvale.
Edgewood at Whitaker.

The J. L. Thomas Club, of the East End, will be out to maintain its leadership in the City League, when the Reliance nine is met at the Bloomfield diamond this evening.

The Thomas outfit will have to play heads up ball in order to stay ahead of the Book team, who is right on the heels of the pace-setters.

Three tilts are carded in the Greater Pittsburgh League, with Edgewood meeting the fast Whitaker team; Verona clashing with Swissvale at the Church Field, and the Murs, of Wilkinsburg, hooking up with Springdale.

The Ingram Presbyterians and Crafton Methodists clash in an important Crafton-Ingram Church League game this evening at Crafton. A victory for Ingram will assure it of at least a tie for the pennant.

In the leading independent games yesterday, the Homestead Aces defeated Blythedale in 10 innings, 4-3; Juliana Club vanquished the Lawrenceville Merchants in 17 innings, 9-8, and Immaculate Heart defeated the Geislers, 4-2.

Miss Lurie 'Finds' Olympic Champion

SHARON, Pa., Aug. 29.—Miss Dora Lurie, former Sharon High and Temple University basketball star, now a sports writer for a Philadelphia newspaper, is credited with being the "discoverer" of Miss Jean Shirley, of Brookline, Pa., who set a new record in winning the women's high jump in the recent Olympic Games.

Miss Lurie was informed of Jean's skill as a high jumper when the latter was a junior in high school several years ago. Dora persuaded Miss Shirley to take the sport seriously, and interested Lawson Robertson, Penn coach, in the girl's athletic career.

Residents of Haverford Township, in which Brookline is located, didn't forget Miss Lurie when they held a celebration in honor of their new champion recently. Miss Lurie rode in the same automobile with Miss Shirley during a big parade and was called upon to give a few remarks after the champion had spoken.

Street Moves Pepper Martin to Third

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 29.—(AP.)—Pepper Martin, whose sensational batting in the World Series last fall won him fame over night, may be moved in closer to the spectators.

Gabby Street, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, shifted Martin from centerfield to third-base yesterday in a series of experiments designed to strengthen the world champions' defensive play. Sparky Adams, suffering from an injured knee, recently voluntarily retired for the season, creating the big problem of filling his place at third.

Martin had little chance to show his fitness for thirdbase in the doubleheader against the Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday, getting only two chances—one when he caught a line drive and the other when he accepted a throw to retire a runner at third.

Army's Assistant Grid Coaches Named

WEST POINT, N. Y., Aug. 29.—(AP.)—Plans for the opening of Army's football practice with the start of the academic year on Thursday were drawn up yesterday at a conference of coaches.

Red Blaik will be Maj. Ralph I. Sasse's chief assistant and will handle the backfield as well. Lieut. Bill Wood will assist Blaik. Fats Ellinger and Lieut. Chuck Born will have charge of the ends, and Lieut. Chuck Harding will handle the scrubs.

The Plebe team will be in charge of Lieut. Garr Davidson, with Lieut. Art Meehan coaching the backs, Lieut. Jack Mailoy handling the ends, and Lieut. Blondy Saunders the line.

Sidney Wood Wins Lucerne Net Title

LUCERNE, Quebec, Aug. 29.—(AP.)—Sidney B. Wood, of New York, yesterday won the third annual Seigniory Club tennis tournament, defeating Jake Hess, of Houston, Tex., 6-3, 6-1, in the final round.

Earlier in the day, Wood has defeated the crack Milwaukee youngster, Frankie Parker, 7-5, 6-4. Hess put out Charley Leslie, of Montreal, in the other semi-final, 6-3, 6-1.

VALENTINE

Captivating Story of a Shy Girl Rushed Into Love

By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER VII.

Joe caught up with Val as she gained the gravel walk. She was walking stiffly, holding her head very high. She had the feeling that if she RAN, if she did anything FAST, she'd cry again.

Dimly she remembered Betty and the boy friend necking by the syringa bush—hoped they weren't there still.

"Touchy! Oh! And you know she did mean every word. She's always hated me. But she doesn't hate me any more than I despise—"

"Now, Val, pull up. What if she did mean it? Anybody's worked as hard as ma, and raised seven kids like she has, on nothing, has a right to be nasty now and then. Oh, forget it, will you, Val?"

He was so worried, so divided between his desire to excuse his mother and placate her, that Val didn't know whether to laugh or cry.

Who raised those seven babies Joe! He raised himself, and then he raised all the rest, just because Mrs. Carey was shiftless and Betty was supposed to be delicate, and Elwyn, the next oldest, was just plain bad, and Edwina was so spoiled she never did a thing for the little ones, Georgie and Ruthie and Vivian!

SORRY FOR JOE

And who earned most of the money to feed them? Joe! While his lazy mother was asleep in her bed, he used to get up at 4 in the morning to start on his paper route and after school he had another one. And before he was out of short pants he had night work.

Didn't Aunt Julia and everybody say he'd be stunted all his life because he worked so hard and was so spindly and pasty-faced when he was a little boy? But he'd fooled them. He'd grown up to match his big feet and hands, and his thin shoulders had widened and his pale face had grown ruddy and tan.

The old ache of her pity for Joe came back. He was so sort of pathetic, with his hard work and his everlasting drawing board, and his dreams of architecture and buildings. . . .

"Oh, all right," she said grudgingly. "But I won't ever come to your place again. That's settled."

He was silent.

"Well . . . I'd better go home."

"I'll walk across the street with you."

"Such a long trip," she laughed, trying not to show her disappointment. Besides, there wasn't anything to be disappointed about. She's come to ask Joe to go to the dance and he's promised to come, and wear a tuxedo.

"Joe, have you really got a tuxedo?"

GOING AWAY

"Huh?"

"A tuxedo! You said you did——"

"Oh! I got off the track. Yes, I have. I got it two weeks ago for a kind of dinner I went to over in San Francisco."

"You didn't tell me!"

"It happened sort of quick. Through one of the fellows at the oil station. A model I made for Hexter's garage he's going to build in Vallejo. I got the notion to send it to ma's brother Joel—the one ma named me for—he has a lot of dough—lives out in Minnesota.

"He came out here after pa died and wanted to take me back with him then, but naturally ma wouldn't stand for that. So we didn't hear from him for years, but he wrote to me a while ago, quite a nice letter, and sent me quite a check. So we've buried the hatchet, though he and ma still don't correspond—"

"You sent him the model and he liked it?"

"Yes—that's the idea. He showed it to some architects back there and through them this San Francisco outfit got interested and invited me to come to this dinner. In fact, I'm going back to Minnesota—he's got me into a big firm there. It's what I've always wanted—my big chance, so I've got to take it. Ma's heartbroken, but I can do more for her and the kids there than I can on the layout I've got now—"

"Why don't you think about yourself for a change?" she said a little bitterly, but it wasn't just for that that she felt bitter. Here he was, her best friend really, the oldest friend she had, going off half way across the continent, and not even being sorry to leave her.

"I'll miss you," she added a little stiffly, when he did not answer.

"I'll miss you, too, Val. Gosh, it's funny to think of going so far away. Poor ma is going to miss me. She was pretty cut up at first—"

"Yes?" Ma again! Ma, ma, ma! If he said it again she'd scream!

"What?"

"Tonight. You see, I'd just told her. Just decided myself, so she was in an upset state to start with."

"It doesn't matter. I won't be seeing much of your family after you're gone and Betty and I are through school."

It was dark and the scent of the heliotrope was still heavy and sweet in the air.

"Oh, that's all right, Val. About the last chance we'll have to go anywhere, I guess. I'm only staying until after the kid's graduation to please ma."

"Good night, Joe."

She watched his long, dark shadow flit along the side of the house. Then she turned and let herself into the dark kitchen.

PREPARES FOR DANCE

The floor squeaked a bit as she tiptoed across the kitchen to her own room. She stopped to listen. Faintly but unmistakably came the sound of Aun' Julia's snore.

Woodie, the old cat, attracted from his nocturnal ramblings by the light in her window, scratched on the back door. She tiptoed back to let him in and he climed into her lap, purring loudly. But when she hugged him he wriggled to be free.

* * *

The dance was something to look forward to.

Everything was ready, the dress, the matching slippers, even a new lace-trimmed slip. Val tried the whole outfit on every day.

Marjorie didn't even have her dress yet, but she wasn't worried. She knew she'd get it. Marjorie Bemis battled for every stitch she had. Marjorie nagged her mother and her mother nagged her father, and finally Marjorie devoted at least one day to loud and ostentatious weeping. When her father saw her red eyes and heard her sobs he said:

"Buy it. But this is positively the last time!"

So the very last minute Marjorie and her mother went out and bought the ivory satin formal that Marjorie had been coveting in the Co-ed Shop window.

Awed by its magnificence, Val described it to Aunt Julia.

"Ivory satin is for a bride or a corpse, and Marjorie Bemis isn't either one, far as I know," Aunt Julia responded tartly, "and if you're getting so you want ready-mades instead of my home dressmaking, why, I'd rather you said so right out!"

"I don't! I love my blue dress! I like it heaps better than Marjorie's—truly I do—"

Aunt Julia was like that sometimes. Suspicious. It took Val a full hour to coax her back to good humor, and then she was angry all over again when she found Val intended to dress for the dance at Marjorie's.

"Craziest thing I ever heard. When you have your own nice room—"

But Val hardened her heart against Aunt Julia's silent pleading and took all her things to Marjorie's in a suitcase. She went in the middle of the afternoon. They were hours dressing.

"Now, if you'll just be vivacious, you'll be all right, hon," Marjorie said.

Val tried her hair in different positions, studying her reflection, for added vivacity. The effect seemed about the same, whether she parted it in the middle or on the side . . . Perhaps, if she curled it . . . But Millie had always warned her against curling—said it wasn't her type.

Marjorie ran in and out of the kitchen, heating her old-fashioned curling iron at the gas stove. Mrs. Bemis, little and gray and dried up looking, but dear and motherly for all that, came into the bedroom with the last-minute laundry—Marjorie's lace handkerchief, her best pink stepins.

A hurried meal at the kitchen table, though there was lots of time. Marjorie getting cross with excitement. Mr. Bemis looking them over, a smile for Val, his heart in his eyes as he looked adoringly at his own girl.

Frank rang the doorbell. Marjorie put on her wrap. Val did, too. They waited for Joe.

"What's the matter with this other young man? You don't want to be late!"

"No, we don't want to be late," Frank echoed.

He looked impatiently at Val. Val tried not to get nervous. She knew perfectly well what Frank was thinking. He was thinking that she didn't have any partner. That she was just going to tag along with him and Marjorie. Well, let him think! He'd soon see!

Unless something happened . . . Mrs. Carey might have pretended to have a headache or a fainting spell, just to keep him home . . . she'd be mean enough to do it! But Joe wouldn't fail her. Not for an occasion like this.

"Come on, Marj—let's dance."

Marjorie jerked away from him angrily. "Don't be a sil! I don't want to be all mussed before I get there!"

They sat down again.

At intervals Frank looked at his watch.

"I will never come to your place again," said Val.

Heart of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge's Role as Audience Suddenly Cut Short

I hardly dared breathe as I stood just inside the nursery door, listening to the "broad cast" that Mary had promised. I knew that she purposely had left the door of the girls' room open so that I could hear the conversation, knowing how vitally interested I was in the scheme that Ronald and Mary were staging, to bring Marion to her senses about Charles Owen.

Carolyn was the first to answer, and there was in her drawling, amused voice and words a soupcon of the feminine malice that all women are supposed to show each other occasionally, but which so far has not betrayed itself among the women, young and older, of the farm house.

"Listen, Marion, you sap, she's accusing you of holding out on her. Are you going to stand for that? Why don't you soak her one?"

"You'll get soaked twice, little one, if you don't modulate that Comanche yell you call your voice," Mary said, and I knew she had given Carolyn the insult supreme to a Whitney Hall girl. "Auntie Madge is terribly afraid Faith will wake up."

"Then why don't you shut the door?" Marion asked in low tones that, however, carried to me. "Nobody asked you to come in here and wake us up, anyway. As for holding out on you, you've had just as much chance to see Ronald play tennis as I have. I'm not his press agent."

RELATIVE PLACATED

"No?" Mary's tone was delicately provocative, but as she shut the door at the same moment, I did not hear Marion's retort, or indeed anything further.

I went back to my book, content to leave Marion in Mary's skillful hands, and read until Baby Faith at last awakened. I was preparing her feeding when Mother Graham came into the room, patently placated and refreshed.

"I don't know when I've had such a good nap," she said. "I didn't mean to stay away so long. It's almost lunch time."

I hid a smile, for I knew what was in the back of her mind. She was hungry, as she always is upon awakening, but she would not have admitted it for worlds.

"Why don't you go down stairs and have lunch with the family?" I said. "Then you won't have to wait for the tray, as you do sometimes."

I said to myself that if she ever had had to wait for a tray it had not come to my notice.

"That's right," she said. "Katie is slower than molasses in January sometimes. But what about you?"

"I'm not hungry, now," I said truthfully. "I couldn't eat a morsel until later, anyway, and I feel lazy. I really would like a tray up here."

AVOIDS HUSBAND

"We-ell," she conceded, and then, as if afraid I might change my mind, she turned and hurried out of the room. I closed the door after her, for I knew that all the members of the household and the guests would be gathered at luncheon—Lillian would see to that, and I was willing to let anyone play hostess.

I simply was not equal to the task of going through a luncheon with the consciousness of Dicky's thinly disguised jealousy of Hugh ever present before me. If I were not at the luncheon table, he would have no possible provocation to temper.

Presently from all over the house came the sounds of pleasant, well bred voices. Later they all centered in the dining room below, but Katie did not keep me waiting. Jim brought me up a bountiful tray, and I scarcely had finished discussing it when Lillian knocked, and then entered hurriedly at my call.

"Can you see Lee Chow now?" she said. "He wants to ask you about that box of Marion's?"

"Surely. Where?"

"Why not up here? I'll send him right up. Incidentally, I have the Dicky-bird's feathers so beautifully preened that I don't believe they can be ruffled again today; unless of course, Hugh begins to fancy that he's the reincarnation of Lochinvar or somebody like that.

"Don't look so tragic! Everything's all right, you among 'em. And you'll scare poor Lee Chow if you show him a face like that."

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

A record breaking crowd of more than 800 youngsters attended the meeting of the Manor Chapter of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club Saturday, and each and every one of them paid their respects to the memory of one of their members who died, Leona Simon, three weeks ago.

It was an awe-inspiring sight to see these youngsters stand at attention while Manager Joe Blowitz paid a tribute to her for the interest she had taken in the Junior Komic Club and the comradeship she showed towards all the members of this chapter.

"MYSTICS" PERFORM

After this ceremony the members were entertained by three youngsters dressed in Hindu costume and who displayed marvelous insight in reading the minds of the children and answering their questions. The three Hindu "Mystics" as they call themselves, were Julius Levkoy, Verner Friedman and Howard Gross. One of the trio greeted the members in the lobby and gave each a slip of paper on which she or he wrote the question they wanted answered. It was very evident that members of this chapter are concerned in only one thing. That is, "are we going to be rich?" and "are we going to make a successful marriage?" And the way that these Hindu's answered these questions brought many a laugh from the audience.

The members of the Schenley Chapter were entertained by the Schenley Junior Komic Club Orchestra, which has had several changes made in its personnel. Those in the orchestra now include, Henry Silverman Sam Singer, violins; Morris Shear, trumpet; William Hennen, trombone; John Cheffy, first saxophone; Hymie Feller, second saxophone; Harold Brecht, third saxophone; Robert Colbert, drums; Fred Archberger, banjo; William Corshenhauser, piano; Sid Renfield, vocalist.

RECORD MEETING

Manager Earl Roeser, of the Cameraphone, also proudly announces that Saturday's meeting broke all records for attendance and that the youngsters all had a corking good time. Among the features of the program was a top-spinning contest, which brought 25 entries. Robert Haskis won the prize.

Then there was a balloon contest and 30 or 40 boys and girls almost blew out their lungs in their efforts to win. Henry La Pertche evidently had the best lung power because he was awarded the prize. Manager Roeser announces a special big stage show for next week, and a number of novel contests in which prizes will be awarded.

If you are not a member of the Sun - Telegraph - Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, send your name and address, name of your parents, date and year of your birth, school you attend to the secretary, Junior Komic Club, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa., and a membership card and button will be mailed to you.

YE EDITOR IS CENTER OF ATTRACTION NOW!

(From the Dallas City, Ill., Review)

McCarthy's grocery is staging a contest this week in which all who wish are to guess on the weight in pounds and ounces of the editor of this newspaper.

We will step on the scales at their store at 8:30 p. m. Saturday night and the closest guesser is to receive a prize. We also will add one year's subscription to the Review to the winner. No charge will be made to guessers, who may register their guesses any time during the week. Drop in and look us over before you commit your guess to the register. You may look us over, but you have to use your own judgment, as we are deceptive appearing.

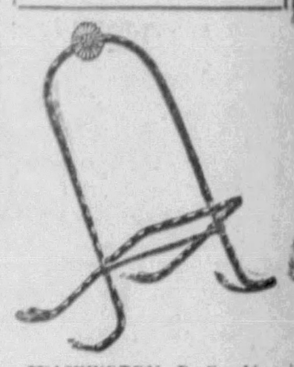
FRISBY HONORED BY BUSINESS LEADERS



WASHINGTON, D. C.—At a pep meeting of the Lace Curtain Stretcher Manufacturers' Association, held here last night, Congressman Horace W. Frisby was presented with a token of esteem in recognition of his tireless efforts to obtain a tariff against foreign lace curtain stretchers. The gift consisted of a beautiful featherweight folding easy chair, or straphangers' friend. Mr. Frisby responded to the spirit of the occasion by doffing coat, vest and suspenders and strenuously leading the manufacturers in a song which he composed especially for the occasion. The song follows—

Who in this broad land today
Carries the torch and leads the way
To prosperity? Hip! Hip!
Hooray!

Frisby!

Who's full of vigor for his years?

Frisby!

Who never hangs his head in shame?

Frisby!

Utilities Cut Expenses

They Are Placing Themselves in Still Better Position To Reduce Rates.

Employes of some of the subsidiaries of the Philadelphia Company have been notified their wages are to be reduced.

The company's customers, while regretting that the employes should suffer, naturally will expect the reduction in expenses to be followed by a reduction in rates. And there is justification for the expectation.

There is good reason to believe the company could have reduced gas, electric and bus rates long ago without depriving its stockholders of a good return on their invested capital.

The city sued the Philadelphia Company's gas subsidiary for a lower rate some years ago and presented a good case for a reduction. The Public Service Commission ruled against the city, but it is now alleged that while the case was pending the president of the Philadelphia Company paid an expensive hospital bill for W. D. B. Ainey, chairman of the commission.

The fairness of the Philadelphia Company's electric rates is brought into question by the fact that last year, while most industries were losing money, its electric subsidiary, the Duquesne Light Company, made record-breaking earnings.

For some time the Philadelphia Company has enjoyed reductions in commodity prices. Now that it is to pay less for services, too, its duty to cut rates becomes correspondingly more imperative.

Let's Have Competition

The City Should Profit by the County's Experience in Ordering Bridge Railings.

The city has done a stupid thing in specifying that "Hunter Safety Railing" shall be used on the Schenley Park Bridge over the Pittsburgh Junction Railroad.

By thus refusing to consider the bids of the manufacturers of other types of bridge railing the city has laid itself liable to monopolistic prices.

A lesson should be taken from the experience of the county. The county found that the Hunter bridge railing was not the only satisfactory kind and accordingly altered specifications to permit competition.

The result was that bridge railing was obtained much less expensively. The railing for the West End-North Side and Tenth Street bridges cost about $6 a foot, as compared with $14.80 a foot paid for the railing for the McKees Rocks Bridge.

The city should change its specifications to permit competition.

The Wharf Parking Test

A Solution of This Vexatious Question by the Courts Is to Be Welcomed.

The suit that has been filed in Common Pleas Court to test the right of the city to use the wharves as places where automobiles may be parked for 10 cents is to be welcomed. It promises a solution to a vexatious problem.

No fair-minded person can fail to see that there are several sides to this case.

Since the city has found it necessary to forbid the parking of cars on the downtown streets, it seems only fair that it should allow other vacant public property to be used at a nominal charge.

On the other hand, it does seem unfair to the owners of garages and private parking lots who pay heavy taxes that they should be subject to the competition of a municipal competitor which, not having to pay taxes, is in position to charge a much lower rate.

There is still another group of people, the most numerous of all, who have an interest in the matter—the citizens who do not use the wharves for parking, and who would like to see them transformed into parkways and esplanades such as beautify the waterfronts of the world's most attractive cities.

Protecting a City's Milk

What the Health Department Is Doing to Insure Purity Makes an Interesting Story.

There are some branches of the city government of which the average citizen knows little or nothing, notwithstanding that they play a vital part in promoting the public welfare.

The Bureau of Food Inspection of the Pittsburgh Department of Health does not often figure in the news, which makes all the more interesting an article by its assistant superintendent and chief chemist, Leicester Patton, in the current number of Pennsylvania's Health, on the work that is being done to assure the people an adequate supply of pure milk.

Mr. Patton tells us that the city's milk is under supervision and control from the time it leaves the udder until it reaches the ultimate consumer. The inspectors are incessantly on the alert to keep the milk from coming in contact with possible sources of disease and dirt.

As showing the extent of their work it is mentioned that in a 15-month period they inspected 16,773 farms, of which 1,105 were refused permission to sell milk to Pittsburgh. Hundreds of other farms were placed on probation and required to clean, repair and whitewash the stables and make other improvements.

We have this branch of the city administration to thank for the low frequency of diseases transmitted by impure milk.

Rehabilitating Industry

Pittsburgh Manufacturers' Co-Operation Will Do Much To Assure Success.

There is evidence that some of Pittsburgh's largest manufacturing companies will co-operate in the plan to rehabilitate industrial plants with the use of the extensive credit now available.

This is almost enough in itself to assure the success of the plan as a means of reviving business, at least in the Pittsburgh district.

In the list of manufacturing executives who are to confer with A. W. Robertson, chairman of a national committee, in regard to the matter, are to be found many imposing names. Let a considerable number of these pledge themselves to spend money at once in rehabilitation of their rundown plants, and thousands of men now unemployed will go back to work.

"If it is as good as he says," thinks Uncle, "why doesn't he use some on his own bare head?"

Do you, dear reader, remember the G. O. P. shouting at that time—"two chickens for every pot"—"two cars in every garage"—"poverty to be wiped out"—etc.?

What do you suppose the ten million unemployed in the nation would say to Uncle if THEIR opinions were asked now?

November will tell the answer.

Norman Should Tell U. S. Public What He Is After This Time

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

THE MYSTERIOUS VISIT to this country of Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, under the assumed name of Prof. Clarence Skinner, emphasizes the character of secret diplomacy in international finance.

The vital questions of the workaday world, on which the opportunity to work and live well of tens of millions of workers hinges, are customarily discussed behind closed corridors by eminent personalities, who are chosen by other than democratic methods.

As long as the oligarchic rule by bankers worked successfully, it could perhaps be defended, even though it failed to jibe with the theory of government by a free people.

But now that such extra-legal government has broken down and has plunged the world into three years of abysmal economic chaos, it is in order to ask whether free peoples are to be FOREVER ENCHAINED BY THE WHISPERINGS OF FINANCIERS.

EVEN TECHNICAL discussions of central banking problems—such as discount rates and gold movements—have a greater bearing on the welfare of ordinary people than the open debates of parliamentarians, yet undemocratic traditions of secrecy and privacy habitually prevent the admission of the sunlight of publicity to the deliberations of officers of central banks. In adhering to such old world customs, which are based on a DISTRUST of the people, officers of the Federal Reserve System have for years run counter to the spirit, if not to the letter, of the Federal Reserve Act.

In doing so, they have committed the American people to co-operative policies of immense historic importance.

No one doubts that the exchange of opinions on purely banking questions by officers of central banks, which, since the war, have had a new rapprochement, can become a civilizing force, yet the destiny of peoples should not be BARTERED away without public discussion and information.

The practical effect of secrecy is to put the inner circle and their friends in a position of SPECIAL PRIVILEGE, enabling the select group of the initiated to profit greatly from their inside information in the world markets.

THE PRESENT MISSION of Montagu Norman is especially questioned, because it apparently has QUASI-POLITICAL objectives.

The term of the one-year Hoover moratorium has expired, and thus far the debtor countries, of which Montagu Norman's is the most important, have taken NO STEPS TO RESUME MEETING THEIR OBLIGATIONS; in fact, the CURRENT BRITISH BUDGET MAKES NO PROVISION FOR DEBT PAYMENTS.

In the circumstances, Montagu Norman's use of the pseudonym and his effort to secrete himself in a small Maine town gives the impression of a minister-extraordinary sneaking into a friendly country to carry on FURTIVELY negotiations which his country is not yet ready to carry on openly.

According to reports from Washington, the governor of the Bank of England also is prepared to discuss international central banking co-operation which will fit in with the "American managed recovery" which has been launched by the international bankers to assure the re-election of President Hoover.

From a purely domestic standpoint, the postponement, by the Hoover administration, of remedial measures until shortly before the election, might well be questioned. Certainly, from an international standpoint, it would be an INTRUSION for a foreign financial leader to enter into any discussions having to do with the forthcoming election.

AS FOR THE INTERNATIONAL debts, the consistent widespread opposition to cancellation has regarded the Hoover moratorium from the outset as a MERE PRELUDE TO A CAMPAIGN FOR ULTIMATE CANCELLATION. "Cancellation" of course is a euphemism for the attempted PLOT TO TRANSFER THE COST OF THE WAR TO THE BACKS OF AMERICAN TAXPAYERS.

The discussion on this vital question of debts must be made by Congress as the elected representative of the American people. Accordingly, if Montagu Norman has any data or thoughts on this subject, let him issue a public statement—OPENLY AND HONORABLY.

This paramount issue should not be settled in confidential chats between Montagu Norman and Junius S. Morgan, partner of the House of Morgan, fiscal agents for the British treasury. Apparently the impression prevails abroad that the cancellationists can succeed better with a Republican Congress and a Republican President, and therefore foreigners are tempted to pull wires to prevent the election of Gov. Roosevelt and a Democratic Congress, which are committed to collection of the debts of the Allies to the United States Treasury.

OFFICIALLY, MONTAGU NORMAN, if he were disposed to talk to the press, would probably diplomatically deny that his visit has any public significance, but the record shows that the Hoover moratorium was immediately announced after one of his former mysterious journeys to these shores. Probably Montagu Norman came over to get the real low down on American sentiment concerning debts. He probably came over also to stress his own propaganda.

If he came for information concerning the American viewpoint, he would have to visit Kansas, North Dakota, California, Texas, and Ohio as well as other representative American commonwealths. He could not hope to feel the pulse of the American people merely by conversing with his agents in Wall Street or his friends in Washington.

In the circumstances, it would make for international good will if Montagu Norman would depart from his cynical disregard of public opinion, and issue a statement indicating precisely what he is after this time.

Marry-Go-Round

"Be Kind to Human Beings"

It's about time that somebody inaugurated a "Be-Kind-To-Human-Beings" week!

* * *

Be kind to animals, of course! That's EASY! Almost everybody is. But this is a time for us to be kind to EACH OTHER. This is the psychological moment to invest in humanity and to gamble on brotherly love!

* * *

Each and every one of us is living at a high tension and is covered with exposed nerves. Each and every one of us has been HIT, somewhere, and most of us have tender spots, sore spots and painful bruises all over us.

But we CAN be KIND to each other, until the bruises heal and our pocketbooks are mended!

* * *

This is a time to live and lend generously—to GIVE and FORgive.

* * *

This is a time to forget all grudges, to put aside all envy and pettiness and give every man a boost, a pat on the back and a word of cheer. A time to drop all snobbishness, to cease trying to put up a "front," and to invest your time, your money and your energy in kindliness instead of in show.

* * *

A time to give work, if you can—to as many people as you can.

* * *

A time to buy things that you don't need and probably won't need from the haggard, hesitant, amateur-salesman, who timidly rings your doorbell—and to buy them graciously, not grudgingly.

* * *

A time to be patient with the tired, drooping girl who is doing the work of two behind the shop-counter. And with the rushed, toil-worn deliveryman who leaves your groceries, or the overworked laborer who mends the roof or fixes the leak.

A time to speak pleasantly and smile cheeringly at the little tailor, or the piano tuner, or the photographer who comes seeking your patronage.

* * *

This is a time to refrain from hurting people or high-hatting people or snapping at people or snubbing people. All that is OUT.

* * *

This is a time to open your heart, and to remember that the hearts and pride and feelings of others are already tender and sensitive; that their nerves are jumping and that they are tossing on their bed nights, wondering when and where and how to get the money for the rent or the insurance or the butcher and the grocer.

* * *

There is no better-paying investment in the world, than the investment in Common Kindness. It is buying SOUL-STUFF, at bottom prices, which will some day yield Big Dividends in Happiness.

* * *

This is the time to be kind to HUMAN BEINGS!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Out early, and put in to see John Ringling of the circus, but he away; and so to a counting house for a bagatelle of gold and talking to George Rockwell, a polite young money changer. Then to sit in the sun on a rocky outcrop of Central Park.

Home and typing awhile, and to Pierre Cartier's luncheon at the Metropolitan for the French writer, Pierre Lyautry, an engaging fellow. So walking with Verne Porter along the avenue and heard of his farmhouse in Maryland and of Peter B. Kyne, his house guest, working furiously there, away from a telephone.

Edith Harriman, Karl's wife, and Genevieve Cooper to dinner, and afterward to a cinema, as dull as ever I saw. Home late and fell to reading a book called "Man Made Angry," a horrendous tale of a poet turned ripper but parts written with moving beauty.

* * *

On an errand yesterday, I was forced to wait in the dust-powdered room of one of those gloomy brownstone fronts. Oppressive silence was relieved only by the gaunt tick of a heavy ormolu. Every object of furnishing seemed swimming in fluid of dull argentine. An old servitor, with a corresponding funereal manner, hobbling up the creaky stairs with my message. The interview was brief with an aged lady propped up in a four-poster bed—an eccentric. Yet the most astonishing memory of all was a fleeting glimpse of a book of Peter Arno's ribald cartoons on her bed table.

* * *

Talk at a luncheon turned to fascinating odors. An essay Lafcadio Hearn once wrote on the subject was recalled by several. It strikes me, one of the most entrancing smells was that yeasty, half sour, half sweet and pungent fragrance wafting from the old-time saloon. There was a tingle of romance, too, in the miniature fortresses of beer kegs stacked in a graduated pinnacle at the sidewalk edge. They awaited the packets returning them to Wiedemann's, Moerlein's and John Hauck's in far away Cincinnati.

* * *

There was also about the old-time saloon a mysterious twilight sifting under and above the swinging doors. Every inquisitive boy in the small town—and the city, too, likely—nursed a secret hanker to see beyond. Perhaps the savory fumes from the free lunch was a part of the lure. But a little more of this and I'll be reciting: "It was a balmy summer evening and a goodly crowd was there . . ."

* * *

No one writing of vagrant odors should omit the fragrance of freshly popped corn and the sickly sweetness of that preparation known as banana oil.

* * *

Mayor Walker's glorification in the films has the tentative title, "The Night Mayor." It will show a pleasure-loving executive in his most amiable mood, typifying his credo of "loving life where chandeliers blaze brightest." There may be a few close-ups of the Casino in the park and the Mayor's corner table. The scenario was written by Sam Marx, son of Max Marx, long a well-known Broadway tailor.

Thingumbobs: Polly Moran's nickname is "Pigeon" . . . Wilson Mizner joined the Hollywood hatless before his illness . . . Jack Sharkey's extravagance is pajamas of a wild hue . . . Lowell Sherman walks in the moonlight in carpet slippers . . . E. Phillips Oppenheim has three pet monkeys . . . Vincent Youmans never misses one of those Broadway ballyhoo attractions . . . Al Smith refers to the Empire Building as "the shack" . . . Elisabeth Marbury smokes one cigaret a day . . . Gene Markey's caricatures are so excellent, a publisher is coaxing him for a book of them on Hollywood . . . Harry Richman has become the world's most highly paid entertainer.

A new orchestra leader in town launches a piece by merely lifting the little finger of his right hand. It's an excellent change. Most of us, with the observing Jack Benny, have wondered why most all of the leaders, starting a tune, act like a trick horse answering with paws when you ask him how old he is.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

"Life isn't fair!" you say, bitterly.

Of course it isn't. Life, per se, is neither fair nor civilized. It is still 90 per cent jungle . . . with every animal in it trying to take advantage of every other animal.

Human life is still a new business. A short while ago man was little better than a gorilla. In his poor brain something fumbled feebly toward beauty and order. But his acts were the acts of a gorilla. He was cowardly and cruel, greedy and utterly selfish. He was . . . and often still is . . . an untamed beast.

You do not need to go to Africa to prove that fact. You can go into the slums of any great city and see people who have never risen much above the level of beasts.

You can walk those same streets and see something even more terrible—men and women who once were fine but who, under the pressure of hardship, are becoming beasts again.

And we go back to the beast with terrible ease. A little too much hunger or fear or hate or loneliness and the jungle has claimed us again. For the powers of darkness are still strong within us. And the gentle saint knows secret moments when he is a fiend.

And, painful as it may be, the greatest glory in human life is that inner struggle between the powers of darkness and the powers of light.

You were born into a rough game. But, rough though it is, it was a privilege to be born into that game. There's plenty of punishment in it, but there's also plenty of profit.

There is laughter as well as weeping—there is joy as well as sorrow—there is love as well as hate. And above all ugliness and cruelty, shines the dreams of nobler thing to come.

Millions of other human beings—as sensitive as you—have found it worth while to endure the punishment of life and face its unfairness for the sake of that profit. Then why shouldn't you?

Everyone else on earth runs risks, takes wallops—why shouldn't you? Everyone else must learn how to dodge danger and plan action—why shouldn't you?

Why should you expect life to be peaceful and rosy—just for you? Why should you expect the other jungle inhabitants to forego all their natural, ferocious impulses and play pretty—just for you?

Are you such a weakling that you can't stand the gaff—and pay the price?

No, of course you're not. You're brave and you're smart and you're proud. But the trouble with you is—

YOU'RE STILL A CHILD.

You still hate to face horrid reality. You still like to live in dreams. And your pet dream is that you shall be handed happiness on a silver platter. Or, in other words, get your own way without a struggle.

GET OVER IT!

Life doesn't come that way. And it's a blessing it doesn't—or what a bunch of cream puffs we would be!

Life's a tough racket. And you've got to get tough and wise and quick on your feet to tackle it.

So stop your whining. Stop expecting people to play pretty and stop refusing to play with them until they do. You're just wasting the years by waiting like that. Life will NEVER be fair.

PUT AWAY YOUR KIDDIE DREAMS—AND START!

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Irrespective of the distress you experience and the harm which your physician says you are doing to your system by overloading your stomach, you continue the practice.

Too stout, perhaps, and your doctor has indicated things you should not eat if you would reduce your weight, but do you follow his advice?

Why? Because you love food—good food—and you have the money to procure it.

But your good resolutions are short-lived.

You ought to be ashamed if you have injurious habits and won't try to remedy them; you will surely pay a dear price for your self-indulgence.
